GERMAN SHELLS SET LIEGE ON FIRE

German Attack Repulsed on Thursday but Another, with Larger Force of Fresh Troops, was Made Today and May be Successful.

The International News Service wishes to point out that the cutting of the German cable has cut off Germany from direct communication with the outside world. Practically all of the news from Europe in the past few days has come from either London, Paris or Brussels, where the foes of Germany exercise strict censorship of all cable news.

It is within the power of the censors to suppress any and all news.

The fact that the London cables, since the German cables were cut, tell almost solely of English, French and Belgian victories, must not be taken to indicate beyond doubt that the Germans have not been victorious in some of their battles. There are always two sides to a story. When the Germans' side is told it may show that they have captured many English merchant ships, have inflicted damage to their foes in naval battles, and it may contradict some of the London cables about the German losses at Liege.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Rotterdam, Netherlands, Aug. 7.—Liege is burning. Shells fired by the German artillery have set fire to the Cathedral of St. Paul, the Palais de Justice, the Church of St. Jacques and the Theater Royal. Flames also attacked the University, which is attended by many foreigners, but they were extinguished by the soldiers.

Brussels, Aug. 7.—

Every one knows that as soon as a cardinal becomes a pope he is no longer known by his own name, but takes a new one. This custom originated out of reverence for St. Peter. This custom, now a law of the church, had its origin in 884, when Peter III became pope of Rome. He held that it would be presumptuous to style himself Peter II, so he adopted the name of Sergius II. Before that time many popes had changed their names, but it was not obligatory for them to do so. Sergius II not only established a precedent in this direction, but he set an example which all pontiffs have followed in that none of them has ever retained or assumed the name of Peter.

Our Sixteen Striped Flag.
How many stripes in the American flag? Thirteen, of course, yet there's an American flag flown legally today which has sixteen stripes. It is the flag of the revenue cutter service, and the stripes are vertical, not horizontal, as in the ordinary ensign. The stripe nearest the staff is red; then come white and red alternately, so that the outermost stripe is white. The reason for the sixteen stripes is found in the fact that when the revenue flag was authorized, in 1799, there were sixteen states in the Union, three having joined the original thirteen. — New York Tribune.

"Apart from the loss of the small British cruiser Amphion and the German mine laying Koenig Luise, there has been no other fighting and no other loss as far as we are aware."

"On Wednesday a flotilla of torpedo boat destroyers while patrolling the upper reaches of the channel found the Koenig Luise laying mines. The destroyers pursued and sunk her. About fifty of her crew, which were humanely saved by the crews of the British destroyers."

Flames also attacked the University, which is attended by many foreigners, but they were extinguished by the fire department.

bank of the river Meuse. There they will await reinforcements.

Four hundred thousand German troops are reported on their way here from Aix-La-Chapelle in two columns, one following the direct route to Liege and the second moving up the valley of the Vesdre river, which joins the Meuse at Liege.

Eighty thousand of these reinforcements have already reached Verviers. These troops are said to be under command of the German Crown Prince who was reported yesterday to have already arrived at Liege. Six pontoon bridges have been thrown across the Meuse south of Vise and at 5 o'clock this morning the Kaiser's troops began their advance.

Though subjected to a heavy fire from Belgian guns, they successfully accomplished the passage of the river and moved southward, blowing up a number of railroad bridges.

Wild excitement was caused here early today by a dispatch sent from Maestricht to London and flashed here saying that Liege had capitulated. This was immediately denied by the war ministry which issued an official announcement that the Germans had withdrawn after forty hours of almost continuous fighting, that the Germans had lost more than 15,000 in killed and wounded and that their artillery had failed to batter a breach in any of the Liege forts.

The attack on Liege will be resumed within a few hours. The invading forces are placing their artillery where they can direct a destructive fire upon the forts of Baron, Evergne and Fleron. If these forts are reduced the city will be compelled to surrender.

Reinforcements for the Belgian garrison are being sent to Liege as rapidly as possible. When the Germans began their attack there were only 22,000 men to resist them, but there are now about 50,000 in and immediately west of the city.

If the Germans capture Liege they will have cut off the Belgian army from the rest of the country. The Belgian army is now in a very dangerous position.

battle in the North Sea reached Tyneside shippers early today, when the admiralty advised ship owners that they might send vessels anywhere in the North Sea."

The Daily News has received a New Castle dispatch timed 1 a. m. today, which says that a wireless message states the British fleet engaged the German high sea fleet in a heavy battle off the South Dogger bank and after a general engagement along a battle line extending for many miles the German fleet was beaten back and moved in the direction of the coast of Holland. It adds that the German fleet is believed to be completely hemmed in on the eastern side of the North Sea.

COL. H. D. LAFLIN DEAD IN SAUGERTIES

Colonel H. Dwight Laflin, for many years a prominent resident of Saugerties, and during his active years well known in military circles throughout the country because of his connection with the famous Ellsworth Zouaves, died at his home at Saugerties Thursday evening, aged 84 years. For the past few years Colonel Laflin had not been in robust health.

Colonel Laflin was the son of General Luther Laflin, who was one of the founders of the Laflin Powder Company, which was the nucleus of later large concerns which eventually were merged into the Powder Trust. He was born at Hlandford, Mass., February 12, 1830. When he was seven years old, his parents removed from Massachusetts to Saugerties, where Colonel Laflin received his early education, which was supplemented by courses at the Boston Latin School and the Pittsfield

How to Make Pillows.

When making pillows put the feathers into a cheesecloth case and then slip this into the regular case of ticking. When the pillow is soiled the ticking can be taken off and washed and the feathers washed, sunned and dried without emptying them from the cheesecloth. The latter should be made much larger than the ticking to allow for the spreading of the feathers.

$54,000,000 DAILY COST OF THE WAR

A daily expenditure of $54,000,000!

That is the estimated cost of armed conflict between France, Russia, Germany and Austria. Were England and the Balkan nations included it would bring the total to a much higher sum.

At the time of the Russo-Japanese conflict there was much discussion of a possible European war, although no one accepted it seriously at that time. M. Jules Roche, the famous French statistician, however, estimated that a war involving the four nations would cost $400,000,000 the first two months, or $6,000,000 a day each.

Most of the conclusions arrived at by M. Roche were based on figures of expenditures for previous wars. He allowed for the difference in cost, for modern warfare is much more costly than warfare at the time of the Franco-Prussian war. His calculations may be thus summarized:

In January, 1871, the actual cost per day to the French treasury, according to the Bureau-Lajardie official report, was 16,000,000 francs (or $3,200,000); this for 600,000 men under arms during the entire period of the war was exactly 13 francs, 88 centimes. Into the costs of forage one dollar a day for each horse, M. Roche did not go. But even with the figures for the actual cost of the war, he arrived at the following figures:

Do You Know

That it is necessary to look at the Kaiser's movements for years has represented himself as a lover of peace, now declares that he "is confident that the ancient warlike spirit still lives in the German people—that powerful, warlike spirit—which in the past has been the dread and terror of our enemies." Alfred Noyes, whose "Wine Press" is one of the most stirring tracts against war ever written, now comes out with a new poem of which a sample is as follows:

It is God's answer. Though for many a year This land forgot the faith that made her great. Now, as her fleets cast off the North Sea foam. Casting aside all faction and all fear. Thrice armed in all the majesty of her strife. Britain remembers, and her sword strikes home.

Thus has sentiment changed in everybody, so far as public utterances go. President Wilson's proposition to act as peacemaker has not elicited a serious response from any of the warring powers. We see now that the much-advertised movement of which the Hague tribunal is an outcome has been a bubble. If ever there is a general beating of swords into ploughshares it will have to be brought about by methods as yet untried.

Many of our readers have expressed gratification over the fact that The Freeman has been first to tell them about every important move in the European war, while the big New York papers which arrive next morning have nothing for them but a rehash of what they already know. This will be so during the whole war, and the reason is very simple. The day starts in the east and is all over in Europe while the sun is still high here. The Freeman closes its forms about 3:30 p. m. At that time it is 8:30 p. m. in London, 8:39 p. m. in Paris, 9:24 p. m. in Berlin, 9:36 p. m. in Vienna, and 10:30 p. m. in St. Petersburg. Battles nearly always happen in the daytime, and it is during the same period that Governments issue proclamations and orders. Not only does an afternoon paper in this country have plenty of time to secure and publish European news on the day of its occurrence, but it is frequently able to publish accounts of events before the time of their occurrence as recorded by the clock. The so-called "lobster editions" of the New York morning papers, which are printed in the forenoon about 10 o'clock but which bear little under false pretences in this city, are obviously unable to publish anything new outside of unconfirmed rumors. It is a bad year for morning papers, and we extend to them our sympathy.

Some unthinking folk have to let the real pinch of a shoe to know it hurts! It would be well if once in a while they might be driven to change places with some of the lowpaid workers who serve them and must wait for the spirit to move before any pay is forthcoming. Or perhaps they might grow the wiser if for a month or a year so they might be one of the lesser tradesmen, supplying and paying for goods all the while, yet waiting and waiting for bills to be met. They would learn that neither a home nor a business can be run by the doubtful means of "trust," delay or whatever they are pleased to call it. And perhaps they might count it considerate and fair to adjust their affairs rather often.

They might learn, too, that some workers, whose earnings are small and in dribblets, have a feeling that in asking for their legitimate pay they are needlessly advertising their condition abroad; and, since pride is not confined to any rank or station, they wait, and actually suffer for lack of the money.

And—by way of changing places— isn't it true that the world would be easier, more comfortable and all-around happier if all of us would even seriously think ourselves filling the posts that others occupy, not the others with whom we have no contact at all, just the ones that come close? We, as individuals, are not responsible for the whole big world—only for the conditions we possibly can change.

The men and women we employ, in large or very small way—are we always quite fair in our demands? Do we expect too much and pay too little? And do we ask them to do what, if we were asked to do under similar conditions, would arouse a small tumult within? The only way to answer, and to answer quite truly, is to think, not of our side of the story, but of theirs.

Sometimes, in homes, altogether too much is put upon workers, and sometimes in business. The mere thought of changing places might not always be effective, but if, for a week, a month, a year at a time, the high might be brought low and the low step up high, surely some good would result. For there is much thoughtlessness in the world that would pass into something better if folk might be shocked wide-awake to its sorry effects.

out on a trip. was the same way in other lands; everywhere he had to pay a fee. In Japan, however, he met his reward. In the land of the chrysanthemum fat is regarded as a sign of beauty and is an object greatly to be wished for by the men. One evening Mr. Kahn and his wife were at a bazaar. Strolling about they finally paused before the booth of a fair maiden.

The girl gazed with admiration on the imposing figure of the American representative and at last ran out from behind the table, threw her arms around his neck and burst into exclamations of delight.

"Oh, how nice!" she cried in broken English. "Nice and fat!" proceeding to bestow a series of most emphatic hugs on the object of her admiration.

Mrs. Kahn burst into laughter and the representative hastened to extricate himself and his wife from the building.—Washington Star.

It is strange. Craig Biddle, tall, bronzed and athletic, was dining in Monte Carlo, after the Nice tennis tournament. "Do you see that girl?" an Englishman said to Mr. Biddle, and he nodded toward a beautiful girl in a white gown, quite without sleeves, that seemed to be literally falling from her lovely shoulders. "Well, that girl is a worthless creature, and she's ruined my best friend. Yes, my best friend has spent half a million on her in the past year."

"Strange," said Mr. Biddle, with a smile, "strange, isn't it, how these worthless girls are always the most expensive!"—New York Times.

Some are examples of exquisite iron work. Others are delightfully quaint, such as the sign of the old Latin quarter barber, which announces that he "works quickly and silently." Following the name of a herbalist in the request that he be not mistaken "for the other impostor living across the street."

A Belleville store proclaimed itself "a raw and cooked pork butcher." Among signs intentionally facetious opposite that of a little cafe which stood opposite the gate of a Parisian cemetery announcing to passers that they would be "more comfortable here than across the street."—Chicago Tribune.

We, as individuals, are not responsible for the whole big world—only for the conditions we possibly can change.

The men and women we employ, in large or very small way—are we always quite fair in our demands? Do we expect too much and pay too little? And do we ask them to do what, if we were asked to do under similar conditions, would arouse a small tumult within? The only way to answer, and to answer quite truly, is to think, not of our side of the story, but of theirs.

Sometimes, in homes, altogether too much is put upon workers, and sometimes in business. The mere thought of changing places might not always be effective, but if, for a week, a month, a year at a time, the high might be brought low and the low step up high, surely some good would result. For there is much thoughtlessness in the world that would pass into something better if folk might be shocked wide-awake to its sorry effects.

FRANCES SHAFFER.

Barber—Very sorry, sir, but I'm afraid I've made a small cut on your chin. Subject—Ah, it must have been a sharp spot on the razor.—London Punch out on a trip. was the same way in other orient lands; everywhere he had to pay a fee.

In Japan, however, he met his reward. In the land of the chrysanthemum fat is regarded as a sign of beauty and is an object greatly to be wished for by the men. One evening Mr. Kahn and his wife were at a bazaar. Strolling about they finally paused before the booth of a fair maiden.

The girl gazed with admiration on the imposing figure of the American representative and at last ran out from behind the table, threw her arms around his neck and burst into exclamations of delight.

"Oh, how nice!" she cried in broken English. "Nice and fat!" proceeding to bestow a series of most emphatic hugs on the object of her admiration.

Mrs. Kahn burst into laughter and the representative hastened to extricate himself and his wife from the building.—Washington Star.

It Is Strange.

Craig Biddle, tall, bronzed and athletic, was dining in Monte Carlo, after the Nice tennis tournament.

"Do you see that girl?" an Englishman said to Mr. Biddle, and he nodded toward a beautiful girl in a white gown, quite without gloves, that seemed to be literally falling from her lovely shoulders. "Well, that girl is a worthless creature, and she's ruined my best friend. Yes, my best friend has spent half a million on her in the past year."

"Strange," said Mr. Biddle, with a smile. "Strange, isn't it, how these worthless girls are always the most expensive!"—New York Times.

TWENTY AND TEN YEARS AGO.

August 7.—George Winter rode his bicycle 100 miles about the city during the day.

Three tenement houses at Glasco owned by Washburn Brothers destroyed by fire.

Signs of Ancient Paris.

George Cain, curator of the Carnavalet museum, in Paris, treasure house of Parisian antiquities, has arranged an exhibition of old signs rescued from under the pick of the demolisher.

Some are examples of exquisite work. Others are delightfully quaint, such as the sign of the old Latin quarter barber, which announces that he "works quickly and silently." Following the name of a herbalist in the same old world district is the request that he be mistaken "for the other impostor living across the street."

A Belleville store proclaimed itself "a raw and cooked pork butcher." Among signs intentionally facetious is that of a little cafe which stood opposite the gate of a Parisian cemetery announcing to passers that they would be "more comfortable here than across the street."—Chicago Tribune.

Ambition is like love—impatient both of delays and rivals.—Denham.

The Engagement Ring

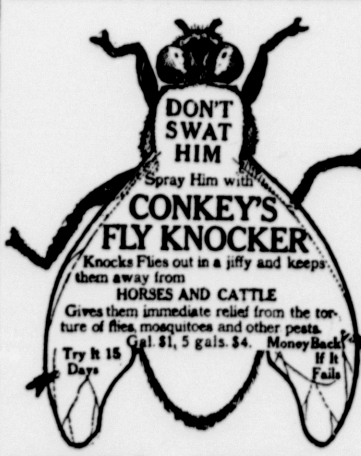

It means but once in a life-time. It means so much. It should be perfect, flawless, chaste.

There's much uncertainty about diamonds, except to the expert. They should be chosen at a store in which you have implicit confidence. We strive earnestly to merit such confidence.

Diamonds are like gold when wisely bought. They are worth their cost anywhere on earth and are constantly increasing in value. Our gems will bring their price anywhere any time, and we guarantee them positively.

Examine our rings—not only solitaires but all styles for all needs.

WALL STREET MORE HOPEFUL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, August 7.—Hopes for the reopening of the New York Stock Exchange centered today about the fact of the reduction of stock brokers' loans to a very small total, so that it was considered a possibility that trading on a cash basis would soon be established. While cash trading would be but a partial remedy to the paralysis of the market, Wall street looks upon it as the first step toward normal conditions. Cash trading is looked for in London today, when reopening of the Exchange there is to be possible by the announced reduction of the discount rate from ten to six per cent. France had joined in the calming of investors by reducing the rate from 7 to 6 per cent. The almost complete clearing away of transactions in the New York securities market for last Friday and the understanding that the securities arriving on the Mauretania will also be taken care of at once, gave confidence to the brokers that the country was ready for a conservative resumption of their business.

ROCK HILL.

Rock Hill, Aug. 7.—Mr. and Mrs. Riley Baird called at Oscar Harp's on Sunday.

Frank W. Rosa made a business trip to Kingston on Monday.

Emmer Brooks of The Clove spent Thursday night and Friday of the past week with friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Krom spent Saturday and Sunday in Kingston.

Mrs. Riley Baird spent Tuesday night with her daughter, Mrs. Mary Parker, in East Kingston.

Mrs. Chace of Allgerville spent Thursday at A. D. Krom's.

The dance held at Oscar Harp's on Wednesday night was a success.

Oil Trust Busters Here.

Representatives of a large independent oil company were in town this week looking over the city with a view to establishing an oil depot here. No decision was announced in the matter by them.

HEALTH OFFICERS CONFER.

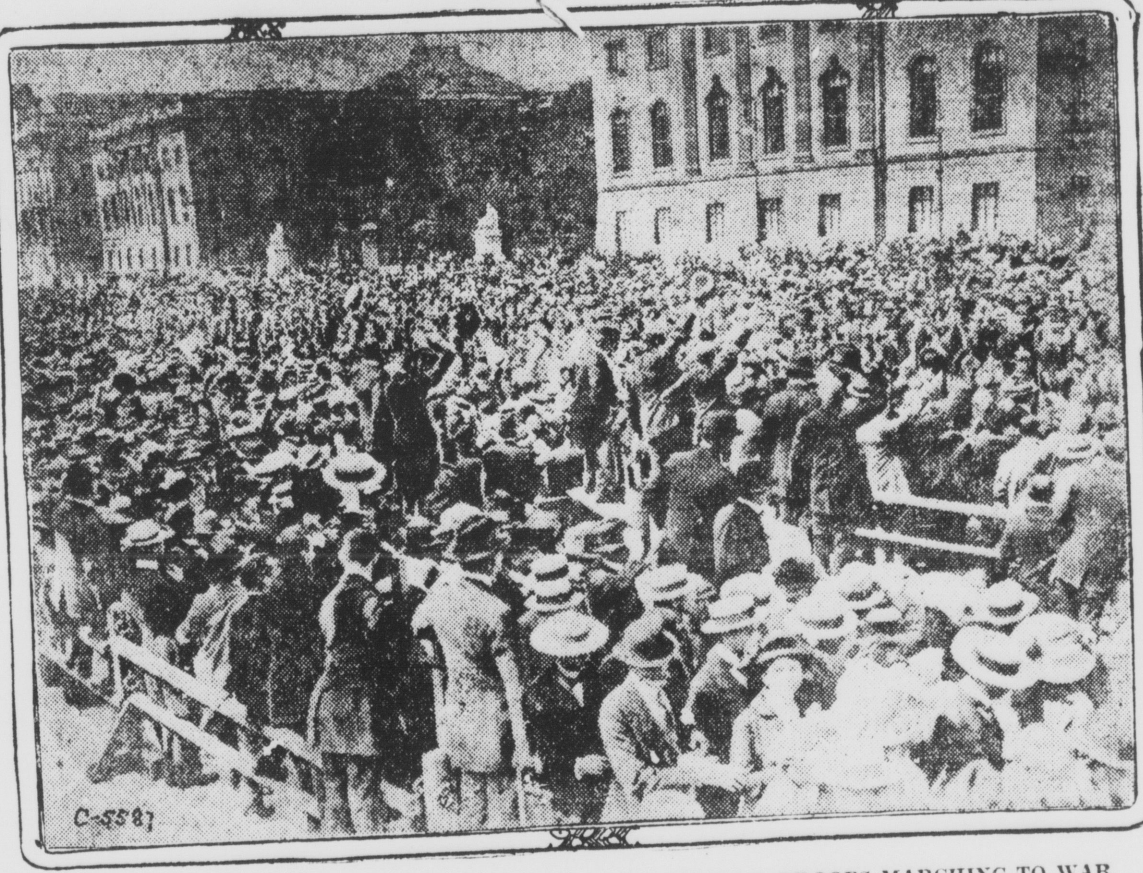

Four Counties Represented at Conference Held Here on Thursday.

A convention of health officers of the different towns in the four counties of Ulster, Greene, Orange and Sullivan met at the court house on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. About one hundred health officers were in attendance and received instruction in the safe-guarding of the public health. The first speaker, Dr. Cressy L. Wilbur, read a very interesting paper on the importance of the office of registrar of vital statistics, and the great importance of the local physicians working with that office. He reminded those present that a great number of doctors were very negligent in reporting to the registrar the births and deaths that occur, and of the necessity of having these certificates correct, and when they were handed in no changes should be made without due process of law. He also said that it was very necessary that the reports of the registrars should be handed in, as the law requires, on the fifth of every month.

Dr. Fred M. Meader was the next speaker and gave a very interesting talk on "The Sanitary Survey, and Communicable Diseases." He instructed the health officers in the ways in which they should enforce the sanitary code as it applies to their districts, and the necessity of inspecting the school houses and other public places to see if they were in compliance with the code. The officers should get acquainted with the conditions that exist. They should know about the sewerage system in their towns and the source of their water supply, and should see that it is in the best condition possible.

Another important question was the vaccination of school children for immunization against many of the diseases that are communicable. The vaccine that is used today is a great deal different from that used a number of years ago and there is no danger in its use, as is supposed by many people today.

A number of other suggestions were given by the different health officers when the meeting was opened for discussion. In the importance of each health officer being on the job. After the meeting those who attended the convention had their pictures taken on the court house steps.

FIRST PHOTO RECEIVED IN AMERICA OF GERMAN TROOPS MARCHING TO WAR.

The picture shown above was taken just two days before Germany declared war on Russia. It shows the vast crowds cheering a division of infantry marching through the streets of Berlin on its way to the front. The infantry divisions have sustained the heaviest losses in the German troops' repeated attempts to cross the border into France.

An Excellent Reason.

One of the stories about the late Sir Douglas Haigh, the veteran journalist, relates to one of the early papers he was connected with.

He was crossing Waterloo bridge one day with a friend when he suddenly marched up to a couple of newsboys and soundly boxed their ears.

His friend, amazed at this proceeding, naturally asked him what he meant by it. "They were selling your paper," he pointed out.

"Yes, I know they were," was the reply, "but they weren't shouting it loud enough!"—London Globe.

Mamma's Kiss.

This pretty child story is from the French:

A mother tells her little girl that she will not kiss her for a week. Before two days have gone by the child's lips hunger so for her mother's kiss that she begs her not to punish her any more.

The mother says: "No, my dear. I told you that I should not kiss you, and I must keep my word."

"But, mamma, mamma," says the little girl, "would it be breaking your word if you should kiss me just once tonight when I'm asleep?"

Foresight.

She—Johnnie needs a new pair of shoes. He—Why, saints alive! I brought home a pair for him last night! She—Yes, you did. But as it took you fully six weeks to remember to get them it might be well to start in now on the next pair.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Wholesome Advice.

Just because it is so difficult for a rich man to enter the kingdom of heaven the poor man should not think he has an absolute cinch.—Little Rock Gazette.

ASHOKAN.

Ashokan, Aug. 7.—The Ladies' Aid of the new M. E. Church of Ashokan are to be congratulated on the successful outcome of their first fair, both socially and financially, which was held on Wednesday evening of this week. The highest number served in the lecture room, was all that was to be desired. The booths were pretty and very well patronized and the sum of $180 was taken into the treasury, as the result of the first real celebration at Ashokan.

The artesian wells are certainly a source of blessing here this year as we have an abundance of sparkling cold water, while all around us we hear of the scarcity of same. This little valley does not seem to suffer as the gardens and crops seem fine.

The show, "In Old Kentucky," given in Elmendorf's Hall was greeted by a full house and did not seem in any way to conflict with the success of the church fair held on the same evening.

The "Red Cross Society" will give an entertainment in Elmendorf's Hall on Wednesday evening, August 13. Admission 10 and 20 cents.

Mr. and Mrs. William Corbin and Little Billy, formerly of West Shokan, now of New York, called on Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Winne and Mrs. Emily Winans on Thursday of this week. They came by auto.

The new state road running through Ashokan to Cold Brook and so around the upper side of the dam, is now completed as far as the Traver Hollow bridge and is a most delightful drive, as the many autoists passing through here testify.

Mr. and Mrs. Golden Van Benschoten are stopping here for a short time, before leaving for their new home. We would like to keep them with us.

Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Crispell of Kingston passed through here by auto one day this week and stopped to greet us.

Mrs. U. G. Bolce of New Brighton was a caller here recently. Her many friends were glad to see her. She is stopping with D. N. Mathews of Kingston.

ATTEMPTED HOLDUP NEAR WINNISOOK

Lew Ryan of Big Indian, who is employed as a driver in the livery of William Atkins of that place, was held up Thursday night about nine o'clock on his way to the Winnisook Lodge. He had arrived at a point about one mile this side of the lodge room when a man stepped from the underbrush by the side of the road and demanded that he throw up his hands, but instead of doing that he used the whip on the horses and succeeded in throwing the robber to the side of the road, who picked himself up and fired two shots at the rig, which had gotten some distance beyond and then he disappeared in the woods. It is believed that this was the Italian that held up and shot at the superintendent of schools of Margaretville, Mr. Long, on the evening of July 28, and who escaped in the woods at Phoenixia, a few days later, and has not been caught, although a thorough search of the woods has been made.

Dorney-Pelley.

A quiet wedding was solemnized in Poughkeepsie on Thursday afternoon at the home of the Rev. S. Wright Butler, D. D., when Charles T. Dorney of New York and Miss Ella R. Pelley of this city were married. Only a few intimate friends were present at the ceremony. After a brief bridal tour Mr. and Mrs. Dorney will make their home in New York.

Military Files.

"Files on parade" means a body of soldiers, a troop or company marching in a file or line, not abreast, but one after another. We speak of the "rank and file," meaning soldiers who are formed so that they march abreast and also in ranks following each other. The term in general means the common soldiers below the rank of non-commissioned officers. There are other file terms in military tactics, such as "file right" and "file left." As Kipling uses the term it means the common soldiers who have been called out for the purpose described in the poem of "Danny Deever."—Philadelphia Press.

We speak of the "rank and file," meaning soldiers who are formed so that they march abreast and also in ranks following each other. The term in general means the common soldiers below the rank of non-commissioned officers. There are other file terms in military tactics, such as "file right" and "file left." As Kipling uses the term it means the common soldiers who have been called out for the purpose described in the poem of "Danny Deever."—Philadelphia Press.

Newspaper advertising rightly used is the most profitable investment. Newspaper readers patronize advertisers because experience has taught them that it pays to trade with daylight men.

MEYERS SAYS POLO GROUNDS SIGNS HURTS HIS HITTING.

Chief Meyers.
Now that Chief Meyers is in a batting slump he is attempting to explain away his inability to connect with the ball by saying that the vivid signs on the fences of the Polo Grounds affect his eyes. Although Hans Wagner, Ty Cobb, Joe Jackson and Frank Baker have played many times on the same field and lined them out as usual, none of these players has ever complained of the Polo Grounds advertising.

TILLSON.
Tillson, Aug. 7.—Miss Alice Krom is visiting friends in this place for a few days.

The consistory of the Reformed Church has invited the people of the congregation to a social on the church grounds Saturday night.

The remains of Mrs. Abbie Markle was brought here Wednesday afternoon, and laid beside her husband, who died three years ago.

Marcus Krom is again under the care of Dr. Stern, having smashed one finger and badly bruised another, while at work on the canal bridge.

Mrs. Willis Keator and children spent the past few days at Edward Barley's of Port Ewen.

Miss Julia Van Kleeck, who has been spending some time here, has gone to Cornwall, where she will visit relatives before returning to her home in Amsterdam.

Miss Hilda Quick of Brooklyn is visiting friends here.

A carelessly thrown cigarette lighted on the robe in a Reo touring car which was standing outside the Broadway aerodrome Thursday night. The robe blazed up and the fire was extinguished by firemen from the Central Fire Station opposite. The owner of the machine learned of the accident after the show.

Star Sight.

By all the rules of the game of nature we should not be able to see a star at all, for it appears from the earth as a geometrical point, a thing without dimensions, and cannot be measured even in the most powerful telescope. A star appears in a telescope just as it does to the naked eye. Now the question naturally comes up as to why we can perceive a star, a thing with no dimensions. We certainly cannot see so small a thing under the microscope. The whole answer is a peculiarity of the human eye and, in fact, of all optical instruments, called diffraction. A lens does not focus parallel rays of light to a geometrical point, even though they come from a point, and so a small disk is printed on the retina by a star, and the star is perceived. Remember, though, that only the star's effect is perceived with the eye. A planet of course is different, as it is comparatively close to us, and its actual disk may be seen and measured in the telescope, just as that of the moon can be seen with the naked eye.—Chicago Herald.

Second, silenium crystallized was found to be a conductor of electricity of phenomenally high resistance.

Third, the new resistant, having been put to use in place of whole coils of wire to balance the Atlantic cable during the period of laying, was found

A lens does not focus parallel rays of light to a geometrical point, even though they come from a point, and so a small disk is printed on the retina by a star, and the star is perceived. Remember, though, that only the star's effect is perceived with the eye. A planet of course is different, as it is comparatively close to us, and its actual disk may be seen and measured in the telescope, just as that of the moon can be seen with the naked eye.—Chicago Herald.

Born of an Odor.

Professor Alexander Graham Bell once gave an account, which is here condensed, of an invention founded on a smell.

First, a chemist detected in sulphuric acid waste an odor which on analysis was found to come from a hitherto unknown substance. This was called silenium.

Second, silenium crystallized was found to be a conductor of electricity of phenomenally high resistance.

Third, the new resistant, having been put to use in place of whole coils of wire to balance the Atlantic cable during the period of laying, was found to have at night twice its resisting power of the daytime.

Fourth, Professor Bell playing upon silenium's sensitiveness to light produced the photophone, by means of which one may talk over a beam of light.

Quite Simple.

"Mr. Yaleblue, I want to ask you a question," remarked the Wellesley maiden to her partner as they entered the conservatory.

FACTS ABOUT CITY OF LIEGE

Capt. Godfrey Lynet Carden, of the United States Revenue Cutter Service, in giving a description of the defenses at Liege, where the Belgian and German armies were reported to be fighting, said today:

"The Belgian defence at Liege has been greatly assisted by armored cupolas. These cupolas were built at the Cockerill Works, located just outside of Liege. Armored cupolas mounting single rapid-fire guns and in pairs command the approaches to many of the principal bridges over the Meuse. This form of defence is unknown in the United States, but it follows the general method in vogue in France of commanding the principal avenues of approach over the frontier by permanent batteries."

Capt. Carden, who for several years was special agent in Europe for the Department of Commerce at Washington, reported at length on the Cockerill Works at Liege. He says that the Belgian cupolas must not be confounded with the Gruson turrets of the Germans. The latter, he said, are built up of chilled cast iron and are designed largely for heavy guns. The Gruson turrets vary in thickness from four to five feet, and have proven impregnable to a point-blank attack of 110-ton guns. The Gruson turrets are intended more especially for coast defence.

"The Gruson turret idea undoubtedly gave rise," Capt. Carden says, "to the cupola, and in a way the land cupolas may be regarded as miniature Gruson turrets. The announcement in the dispatches that the cupolas were impregnable to the German field-gun fire at Liege might have been discounted in advance. The cupolas are demolished except by the heaviest gun fire, that is to say, guns of such weight and calibre as do not permit of transfer with troops in the field."

How Guns Are Hidden.

The Belgian cupolas lie very close to the ground, and show not more than three or four feet above the surface. They are almost invisible. The cupola gun position comprises an excavation for the gun mount and magazine, with the cupola covering the whole like the iron lid of a pot. The only opening is a port just large enough for the chase of the gun, and the piece is trained by the revolving of the cupola. There is generally an all-around fire.

The military engineers in Belgium have made careful selection for these cupolas of positions which would absolutely command the approach to the principal bridges over the Meuse. In addition the practice has been followed of locating the cupolas so as to afford a cross-fire over important highway approaches. The same thing has been done on the French frontier, but on a more elaborate scale, great fortresses and concealed batteries giving cross-fire control over every road leading in.

What is called modern agriculture dates back 200 years. The principles of farming, now generally accepted, began then to be slowly developed through practical experience, through a study of the conditions, especially through a study of the failure of certain farm lands to bring forth adequate results in England.

Necessarily slow. Nature has her own way of working, and she has eternity to work in. Man gains nothing save as he works in accordance with these natural laws. Two hundred years ago we knew little about agricultural chemistry and little that was not wrong about any chemistry. It is the recorded experience of all these weeks and months and years, these seasons good and bad, these reports from new fields, the accumulated gains of 200 years, that have put the farmer in the position in which he stands today.

SILAGE AND DAIRY COWS.

A Trying Season is the Latter Part of Summer and Early Fall.

One of the most trying seasons of the year for the dairy cow is the latter part of summer and early fall. At this season the pastures are often short or dried up, and in such cases it is a common mistake of dairymen to let their cows drop off in flow of milk through lack of feed. Later they find it impossible to restore the milk flow, no matter how the cows are fed. Good dairy practice demands that the milk flow be maintained at a high level all the time from parturition to drying off. It becomes necessary therefore to supply some feed to take the place of the grass. The easiest way to do this is by means of silage. Silage is cheaper and decidedly more convenient to use than soiling crops.

The amounts to feed will depend upon the condition of the pastures, varying all the way from ten pounds to a full winter feed of forty pounds. It should be remembered in this connection that silage contains a low percentage of protein, so that the greater the amount of silage fed the greater must be the amount of protein in the supplementary feeds to properly balance the ration.

seven feet above the ground. They are square and have 2 by 4 pieces running from top to top. Woven poultry wire is stretched about these posts, leaving the entrance way open. Wire is stretched from the 2 by 4's on to the case grapevines were planted. It is the wire so that the vines may run over this in the summer time. ABOUT MILK AND COWS.

Warm milk should never be poured into cold milk, nor should the night's milk be mixed with the morning's milk.

In order to produce desirable flavor it is very essential that the milk and cream be handled under sanitary conditions.

Some cows are such persistent milkers that it is almost impossible to dry them off before freshening. This should be done, however, for every good cow needs a little rest.

The cream separator is recognized as the most economical method of skimming milk.

It is quite a common practice in washing milk utensils to start with hot water. This is not the best method. In boiling milk a skin forms on it. The hot water likewise hardens this on to the sides of the milk vessel, making it hard to remove. The better way is to first rinse the utensil in cold water, and it should be rinsed as soon as it is emptied of milk or else the milk will dry and then rinsing will not so thoroughly remove it.

Through the use of silos and soiling crops from two to five times as many cows can be kept on the same land.

Some people regard life as a perpetual indignation meeting.

Of course opportunity never knocks as hard as the other knockers.

There is no use of being born great if you do not intend to work at it.

SLANG IS HARDY.

Some Supposedly Modern Phrases Are Really Centuries Old.

Much of the current slang supposed to be modern is not new. For instance, "kid" (child) goes back as far as at least as Massinger's "Old Law" (1599).

"I am old, you say. Yes; parious old, kids, and you mark me well." Kidnap (to nab a kid) was certainly not a new word to De Foe or Bunyan.

"To skip out" is accounted slang, but in Wycliff's translation of the Bible we read, "Whanne barnabas and poul herden this, thei skippen out."

In "Ralph Roister Doister," the first English comedy, about the middle of the sixteenth century, an actor says, "Nay dame, I will fire thee out of my house," which certainly has a modern ring.

Goldsmith in "The Good Natured Man" (1768) says, "If the man comes from the Cornish borough you must do him," and this will require no gloss for the modern reader.

"Not in it" is found in Shakespeare's "Winter's Tale." "They have a dance which the wenches say is a gallimaufry of gambols because they are not in it."

"Cut it out" goes back as far as at least as Sheridan's "Critic" (1779). "The performers have cut it out."

The optimistic brakeman who had both legs cut off by a train and who,

when a bystander tried to console him by saying he ought to be thankful he wasn't killed outright, replied, "I'm not kicking," was only using a Biblical expression. "Wherefore kick ye at my sacrifice?"—Edward A. Allen in Forum.

SAWING GRANITE ROCKS.

Steel Wires and Sand and Water Are the Apparatus Used.

Stone is still sawed by hand, even in great cities, where the latest appliances of the mechanical art are to be found. Yet the mechanical sawing of rock is at least sixteen centuries old and in recent years has reached a stage of perfection.

The idea of using a metal cord and a mixture of sand and water for sawing stone was patented by Eugene Chevallier in France in 1854. His apparatus, with scarcely any change, was used not long ago in cutting a trench through the Pont Neuf, in Paris.

The principle upon which the mechanical stone saw works is described by Victor Raynouard in La Science et la Vie as follows:

An endless rope composed of three steel wires twisted together is set in movement and draws with it a grinding granular substance, pressing this hard upon the stone that is to be sawed. The mordant substance is grit mixed with water. The stream of water renders the movement easy and prevents the heating of the cable. The ends of the cable are joined by splicing.

The hardest rocks, such as porphyry, are now sawed more easily than the softer, such as marble, but not so rapidly. Marble is sawed at the rate of nearly nine inches an hour, granite at from six to seven inches an hour.

The proud are always most provoked by pride.

Danger is never mitigated by viewing it with contempt.

It becomes necessary therefore to supply some feed to take the place of the grass. The easiest way to do this is by means of silage. Silage is cheaper and decidedly more convenient to use than soiling crops.

The amounts to feed will depend upon the condition of the pastures, varying all the way from ten pounds to a full winter feed of forty pounds. It should be remembered in this connection that silage contains a low percentage of protein, so that the greater amount of silage fed the greater must be the amount of protein in the supplementary feeds to properly balance the ration.

seven feet above the ground. They are square and have 2 by 4 pieces running from top to top. Woven poultry wire is stretched about these posts, leaving entrance way open. Wire is stretched from the 2 by 4's on top of the wire so that the vines may run over this in the summer time. Rambler roses or morning glories would answer the same purpose. Woodbine is also suitable for this purpose.

ABOUT MILK AND COWS.

Warm milk should never be poured into cold milk, nor should the night's milk be mixed with the morning's milk.

In order to produce desirable flavor it is very essential that the milk and cream be handled under sanitary conditions. Some cows are such persistent milkers that it is almost impossible to dry them off before freshening. This should be done, however, for every good cow needs a little rest.

The cream separator is recognized as the most economical method of skimming milk.

It is quite a common practice in washing milk utensils to start with hot water. This is not the best method. In boiling milk a skin forms on it. The hot water likewise hardens this on to the sides of the milk vessel, making it hard to remove. The better way is to first rinse the utensil in cold water, and it should be rinsed as soon as it is emptied of milk or else the milk will dry and then rinsing will not so thoroughly remove it.

Through the use of silos and soiling crops from two to five times as many cows can be kept on the same land.

Some people regard life as a perpetual indignation meeting.

Of course opportunity never knocks as hard as the other knockers.

There is no use of being born great if you do not intend to work at it.

SLANG IS HARDY.

Some Supposedly Modern Phrases Are Really Centuries Old.

Much of the current slang supposed to be modern is not new. For instance, "kid" (child) goes back as far as at least as Massinger's "Old Law" (1599).

"I am old, you say. Yes; parious old, kids, and you mark me well." Kidnap (to nab a kid) was certainly not a new word to De Poe or Bunyan. "To skip out" is accounted slang, but in Wycliff's translation of the Bible we read, "Whanne barnabas and paul berden this, thei skipeten out."

In "Ralph Roister Doister," the first English comedy, about the middle of the sixteenth century, an actor says, "Nay dame, I will fire thee out of my house," which certainly has a modern ring.

Goldsmith in "The Good Natured Man" (1768) says, "If the man comes from the Cornish borough you must do him," and this will require no gloss for the modern reader.

"Not in it" is found in Shakespeare's "Winter's Tale." "They have a dance which the wenches say is a gallimaufry of gambols because they are not in it."

"Cut it out" goes back as far as at least as Sheridan's "Critic" (1779). "The performers have cut it out."

The optimistic brakeman who had both legs cut off by a train and who,

when a bystander tried to console him by saying he ought to be thankful he wasn't killed outright, replied, "I'm not kicking," was only using a Biblical expression. "Wherefore kick ye at my sacrifice?"—Edward A. Allen in Forum.

SAWING GRANITE ROCKS.

Steel Wires and Sand and Water Are the Apparatus Used.

Stone is still sawed by hand, even in great cities, where the latest appliances of the mechanical art are to be found. Yet the mechanical sawing of rock is at least sixteen centuries old and in recent years has reached a stage of perfection.

The idea of using a metal cord and a mixture of sand and water for sawing stone was patented by Eugene Chevallier in France in 1854. His apparatus, with scarcely any change, was used not long ago in cutting a trench through the Pont Neuf, in Paris.

The principle upon which the mechanical stone saw works is described by Victor Raynaud in La Science et la Vie as follows:

An endless rope composed of three steel wires twisted together is set in movement and draws with it a grinding granular substance, pressing this hard upon the stone that is to be sawed. The mordant substance is grit mixed with water. The stream of water renders the movement easy and prevents the heating of the cable. The ends of the cable are joined by splicing.

The hardest rocks, such as porphyry, are now sawed more easily than the softer, such as marble, but not so rapidly. Marble is sawed at the rate of nearly nine inches an hour, granite at from six to seven inches an hour.

The proud are always most provoked by pride.

10,000 GERMANS STORMING LIEGE

Hand Fighting in the Streets of Bressoux, a Suburb of the City, While Garrison of Belgian Fort is Hard Pressed.

Telegraph to The Freeman.
Luxemburg, Aug. 7.—120,000 German troops were hurled upon Liege this afternoon in a third desperate attempt to capture that city. Repelled by fresh troops that arrived after the Kaiser's forces retreated last night and camped on the bank of the Meuse, General Emmich's regiments moving forward en masse.

Before the infantry got into position, 87 German batteries stationed along the Meuse shelled Fort Fléron and put three of its mortars out of commission. Under cover of their artillery, the German infantry then dashed forward and within a short time had captured Bressoux, a suburb of Liege, only a short distance from Fort Fléron. At the time this dispatch is sent, desperate hand to hand fighting is going on in the streets.

The forts about Bressoux are unable to fire upon the combatants for fear of killing Belgians as well as Germans. If the Germans retain Bressoux they probably will be able to take the main city in a few hours.

Ten thousand men were rushed to Fort Evigne and Fort Barchon to assist the troops resisting the Germans at Bressoux where many houses are in flames.

A garrison at Fort Fléron is pressed to defend itself, a large number of Germans concentrating their attack on that strategic point.

Aug. 7.—Beyond the fact that German forces attacking Liege suffered terrific losses in the situation in and around Belgium city is a puzzle to experts this evening.

Conflicting reports were received late in the day. The London News Service correspondent at Brussels stated that Germans attacked Liege and penetrated Bressoux, after capturing Fort Fléron. A Paris dispatch said an message received there stated the Germans had entered the Exchange Telegraph reported from Brussels that Germans had asked for an armistice and admitted the loss of men.

Earlier dispatch from the London News Service correspondent stated the German losses as 15,000. He had been instructed to report only reports as to losses.

It is believed that his figures are nearer correct than those reported from the Exchange Telegraph.

At least here in the lines of front lines witnessed outside the city when the German forces were retreating.

MARQUART STILL EVADES THE POLICE

Louis Marquart, who brutally murdered Mrs. Amelia Paulus on Third avenue on Wednesday night by cutting her throat, is still at large, but the police have not relaxed the search for him and have hopes of capturing him within a short time. It is known that Marquart had about $8 in money on his person when he made his escape, but he will have to come out of his hiding place to secure food and as his description has been scattered freely throughout the county the police believe that he will be recognized and word of his appearance telephoned in to headquarters.

The theory that Marquart committed suicide after the murder is scouted by the police who for the past two days and nights have made a thorough search of Ludlum's woods and vicinity and believe that if he done away with himself they would have run across the body. Since the night of the murder the search for Marquart has been carried on night and day by Chief Wood and his men assisted by deputies from the sheriff's office and every effort has been made to apprehend Marquart.

A Flight

An Adventure With Bandits In Mexico

By EVERETT P. CLARKE

Dudley Cameron, connected with producers of oil in Mexico, was sent some forty miles northward from Tampico into the state of Tamaulipas to pay a man from whom his employers had bought some oil property $3,000 and get a deed for the land. There was no railroad to the place of his destination, and he proceeded on horseback. He carried the money in his hip-pocket underneath his revolver.

This was when the Constitutionalists were about to march upon Tampico. Mexico has never been free from brigands, and it was not to be expected that in such troublous times the road would be safe. But the property was known to the purchasers to be very valuable, and they were anxious to get it into their possession. They were willing to risk their funds and Cameron was willing to risk carrying them. He would be largely the gainer if he succeeded in paying for the property and securing a deed, because the company that employed him was a very large concern, and it was worth his while to find favor with it.

He carried no provisions with him, calculating to get what he needed along the way. He had made half the distance when at evening he came to an adobe house, at which he concluded to stop for supper. Riding up to the door he called to those within and the door was opened by a half breed girl about eighteen years old. She was quite good looking for a Mexican, though dark complexioned and with coarse hair.

Cameron had been in Mexico long enough to speak the language tolerably well and asked her if he could get some supper. She went back into the house and presently returned with a man, to whom the traveler repeated his request, adding that he would like to stay the night. The man after looking him over scrutinizingly assented. Cameron dismounted, put his horse under a shed and entered the house. He found there another man besides the one who had received him.

Cameron did not quite like the looks of the men. As for the girl, she seemed to be in a condition of captivity. At any rate, they gave her orders harshly, and she did their bidding apparently because she could not help herself. She cooked the supper, consisting of tamales and tortillas, the latter thin, light, wafer-like cakes being very delicious.

After supper both the men left the house, and Cameron sat on the veranda smoking his pipe. The girl was within clearing the table and washing the dishes. Presently she came out wiping a perspiration from her forehead.

"Senor, I would advise you not to lodge in this house tonight."

"Why so?" asked the American, starting.

"These men are bandits. They killed my father, with whom I lived, and have since forced me to do their household work. I am awaiting an opportunity to return to the Rio Grande. I lived on this side of the river, but if I can reach it I will cross into United States territory. Then I shall fear nothing."

Dudley Cameron was a chivalrous fellow and withal at an age wherein the greater risk the greater its attractiveness. He was on his way northward. The girl also wished to go northward, and he felt under obligations to her for the warning she had given him. To ride away into safety, leaving her to be tyrannized over by a couple of bandits, did not accord with his sense of honor. As soon as she had spoken the last words she went back into the house to finish her chores. While she was doing so Cameron thought over the situation. When she had finished she came out and said:

"For the love of heaven, senor, do not let them suspect that I have hinted to you what they are. Do not say, 'I have changed my mind and will continue my journey tonight.' At bed-time go to your room and pretend to sleep, but instead of doing so let yourself down from the window to the ground—the distance is not great—mount your horse and ride away."

"Why should these men trouble me?"

"The one who admitted you has seen you at Tampico and knows you are an employee of the oil people. They do not believe that you are traveling without money, at least for your expenses."

Cameron made no reply to this. He was thinking. How fortunate that this girl was on hand to warn him! He felt very grateful to her. Had she not done so he would probably have been murdered and robbed during the night. Now, if he could not honorably ride away before the return of the men he could at least stand on the defensive in his room and beat a retreat through the window. Then it occurred to him that by taking the girl with him he would be freed from the obligation to await their return. Had he not so much money with him he would risk it. As it was, he did not like putting in jeopardy funds which had been entrusted to his care. He wondered if the girl would go with him.

"Have you a horse?"

"Peptita. My name is Peptita Gonzalez. There are horses in the stables belonging to the bandits."

"At what time do they usually return?"

"They go to a house a short distance down the road, where they gamble and drink pulque and usually return late. What they will do if they have designs on you I do not know. Quite likely they will give you plenty of time to get to sleep, come in late healthily and endeavor to take you unawares."

"Suppose you and I should leave together. Is there not a point of safety we could reach before they would overtake us?"

After some thought the girl said that if they could reach a city like Victoria in time to secure protection all would be well, but if they were captured before entering the town the bandits would surely kill the girl.

"I am armed," said Cameron. "If you were armed also it would be an equal fight."

"The men always carry their weapons with them."

Cameron did not like waiting for the bandits to return and was equally averse to leaving the girl under the suspicion of having warned him. There seemed no way but to take her with him.

"If you are willing to take the risk of going with me," he said at last, "we will leave at once."

It was some time before Peptita replied. When she did she said: "I would rather die than remain here in captivity. Were it not for the times I might invoke the aid of the law. At present there is no law in Mexico. But I will not place you in jeopardy on my account. I have suspected that there are arms concealed somewhere in the house. If I can find anything with which to defend myself I will go with you. If not I will remain. But I will not ask you to remain also."

She went into the house, where Cameron heard her hunting. She had been gone some time when he heard something give way, and in a few minutes Peptita came out with a brace of revolvers. Cameron examined them and found that they had been freshly loaded. This he knew from the fact that the cartridge cases were not dingy. Peptita had piled open a closet door and found a lot of arms and ammunition.

Within ten minutes the two were riding away in the darkness. It was about 9 o'clock, and the bandits were not expected to return till midnight at least. But Peptita did not believe that they would remain long in ignorance of the flight. She suspected that they might have set a watch on the house. Besides, there were others of the gang occupying here and there one of the adobe houses along the road, any one of whom might have been commissioned to report any one hurrying by.

Their route lay midway between the gulf and the railroad leading northward through Victoria and Monterey. The roads were mostly unpaved, so that their horses' hoofs sounded only with a dull thud. Hoping to avoid attention, they rode for awhile at a walk, then assumed a brisk trot and finally broke into a gallop.

Peptita was right in assuming that their flight would be reported to the bandits. They had not been on the way half an hour when suddenly Peptita's horse threw back an ear. In another moment the girl heard the tread of horses coming swiftly, and lastly it broke on the less sensitive ears of the American.

"Now we must run for it," he said. "We must direct our course to the nearest town. How far is the house we left behind Victoria?"

"I've heard it said that it is about twelve miles."

"We've come seven miles, we must turn into the first road we come upon leading westward."

The road forked a short distance farther on, the left hand road leading, so Cameron believed, to Victoria. They turned into it, but seven miles was a long distance for a run for life with men following on fleet horses. The only comfort for the fugitives was that their pursuers were doubtless full of pulque.

Peptita's horse, as were all the horses of the bandits, was fleet. Cameron found it difficult to urge his mount on to keep up with her. He spurred him and belabored him all to no purpose. Meanwhile the hoofbeats in rear grew more distinct. At last Cameron thrust his hand into his hip pocket, pulled out his roll of bills and handed them to Peptita, saying:

"Take these and go on. If the bandits spare my life I will join you in Victoria."

"Is it money?"

"Three thousand dollars."

She took it and, with a parting pressure of the hand, urged on her horse and soon left Cameron far behind.

His horse was now staggering. He dismounted and, slapping the animal's haunch, sent him on. A few minutes later the pursuers clattered by, to find the horse, which they recognized as the American's, standing exhausted in the road a mile farther on.

RIVAL BUTCHERS COLLIDE.

Siller and Farber Lectured and Warned by the Recorder.

Jacob Siller and M. Farber, rival butchers in the lower section of the city, appeared before the recorder this morning as the result of a complaint that Mr. Farber had made in regard to his rival. According to Mr. Farber's story a few days ago he was standing on the corner of Chambers and Murray streets when Siller came up and punched him in the face, cutting it quite badly. The cuts, it was said, were caused by the sharp points of the rings worn by Siller on his fingers. After the alleged assault Mr. Farber took the matter up with his attorney, Henry Klein, and as a result Siller was ordered to appear before the bar of justice. After hearing the story the recorder told them they must leave each other alone and live in peace and if either disturbed the other they would be arrested and if found guilty sent to jail. Farber runs a butcher shop on East Union street and Siller a shop on Chambers street.

Successful Fair at Hurley.

Hurley, Aug. 7.—The long planned for festivity which came off on August 4, was a most successful one to the very last degree. Every detail had been carefully thought out and everything connected with the event went off smoothly and pleasantly. The Sunday school room had been very prettily decorated; from the center of the ceiling, long streamers of red and yellow extended to the four posts about the room. The fancy table was becomingly decorated in the national colors and designs, while the candy table was a daintily arranged affair with streamers of blue dotted with pink roses; the apron table was also very neatly decorated in colored ribbons. On each of these tables was an array of appropriate articles, neatly and enticingly arranged for the delectation of the visitors, designed especially for their purses, which came well filled, as was demonstrated by the very handsome sum of money that was netted for the uses of the church. Miss Hasbrouck and Mrs. Charles Vredenburg had charge of the fancy table; Miss Sadie Elmdorf and Mrs. Abram Elmdorf looked after the interests of the apron table, while the "Willing Workers" took care that the candy table was well patronized. Of course there was a well of lemonade, deliciously cold and properly sweetened, served out most charmingly by Miss Marie Newkirk and Miss Nita Von Schleider. In one section of the room a screen shut off the "goose" which was the most alluring of the attractions. The advantages of its offerings. The antics of the goose's head and neck, swallowing the nickels offered with the subsequent delivery of an appropriate gift, were very amusing. Miss Lucy Merritt had charge of this department. The dinner tables were under the charge of the Ladies' Aid Society, whose constant and assiduous work proved an essential feature of the evening. The young ladies of the "Willing Workers" waited on the tables in a most pleasing manner, adding zest to the comfort of the guests as they partook of the delicious supper offered them. The menu was the very best that Hurley cooking can furnish and that is recommendation enough. When it is taken into consideration the disadvantages under which the ladies work in the narrow limits of the kitchen assigned to them, their work is all the more highly appreciated. No small share in the success of the evening must be attributed to the pastor's wife, who had general supervision of all the arrangements of the evening. There was plenty of room for social gatherings and as friends and groups met about the room, the enjoyment of the evening was easily noticeable.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, August 7.—As a baseball manager, Frank Chance, of the Yankees, and one time of the Cubs, has been greatly overrated, in the opinion of the fans who have scrutinized his record since he took hold of the Yankees in the winter of 1913.

The Yanks finished seventh last year, only 14 points ahead of the cellar champions. They have made a showing this year that is only a trifle better than in 1913 and the chances are 5 to 1 that they won't finish better than seventh.

This situation has caused many of the fans to look back over Chance's career as manager of the Cubs, and the longer they look the dimmer grows the halo that was placed around Chance's head because the Cubs won four pennants and two world's championships while he was at the helm.

In tossing bouquets at Chance, as a manager, many of the fans overlooked the fact that Chance inherited a real ball club when he took over the Cubs reins. For several years before Chance came, Frank Seelye was the Cub manager. For three years Seelye hustled around getting new material and rebuilding the old Cub machine. Just when he had perfected it he was deposed and Chance stepped in.

Chance, while manager of the Cubs, had under him such men as Steinbock, Miner Brown, Ruchlick, Tinker, Overal, Slagle, Pfister, Lundgren, Kling, Hofman, Sheppard, Moran, Taylor and a dozen other wonderful players, both as to mechanical ability and brains. What manager couldn't lead such a gang to the highest honors in baseball? The old Cub crowd, with a deaf, dumb and blind manager could have gone out and copped the laurels back in 1906, 1907 and 1908. They didn't need managing. They managed themselves. They won, not through any strategic generalship on the part of Chance, but through sheer ability.

Chance's real test as a manager came when he took charge of the Yankees. And, from all that has come to pass since then, instead of bettering Yankee conditions he has messed them up in a horrible fashion. He has hired and fired with amazing rapidity, and he has made some glaring blunders in judgment. Chance, as manager of the Yankees, placed the "all in" stamp on Outfielder "Birdie" Cree. He sold him to Baltimore last spring for $2,500. He saw the error of his ways before the season was half over and bought him back at just double the price he got for him. Kieffer, a promising looking pitcher, was on the Yankee roster last year. Chance looked him over and pronounced him unfit. He was sent to the Pacific Coast League. Kieffer's owner there has just refused a $10,000 offer for him for an American League club. He wants more—and he'll get it. A half dozen clubs are said to be bidding for the youth.

Chance canned Harry Wolter, an outfielder. He declared that Wolter's legs had gone back on him—that he had slowed down. Wolter is now the top in the base running and run getting in the Pacific Coast League, is hitting like a streak and fielding in sensational style. He runs like a deer. He probably will get back into the big leagues next year.

Derrick, a shortstop, was pronounced a flivver by Chance and shipped off to the minors. Derrick, a short time ago, was sold to the Cincinnati Reds for $10,000 and is called one of the best shortstops in the league.

A half dozen pitchers that Chance cannot have been doing wonderful work in the Class AA minors and it seems sure that some of them will be back in the majors next season. Daniels, Wakeman, Gilhooly, Channell, Midkiff and a few more that Chance let go have been hitting over .300 in the minors and fielding in sensational style.

Hal Chase, in 1913, was regarded as one of the greatest first basemen the game ever has known. A half dozen of the big league clubs were after him when Chance decided to sell or trade him. Chase was regarded as worth at least $25,000 in the open market. Chance let Chase go to the White Sox for Boston, a never-wruser, who long since has gone back to the minors, and Zeider, who since has jumped to the Feds. Par value of both was only a little more than the waiver price.

Chance, in his two seasons as manager of the Yankees, has had about 100 men under him. Owner Farrell has been ever ready with the dough bag when Chance wanted a player. Chance had full charge of the running of the team. The selection of the regulars has been entirely up to him. What has he done? Kept a bunch of men that are good only for seventh place at best, and let at least a dozen stars slip through his hands.

If a team were recruited from the best men that Chance has placed the "N. G." stamp upon that team probably could give the Athletics a fight all the way. At any rate, such a team certainly would land in the first division, and be perfectly able.

at all times, to wallop Chance's regular team at least seven times in every ten attempts.

Who'll Help Three Little Girls?

Mrs. McMillan, social worker for the Federation of Women's Clubs, has asked The Freeman to make known to its readers the need which she has for clothing for three little girls, aged respectively 8, 10 and 12 and all small for their age. These children are in immediate and very real need of clothing and any aid that can be given will be most heartily appreciated. Any persons having clothing which they can spare and which is suitable for the little girls, by sending the same to Mrs. McMillan at the Federation House, or notifying her that the clothing is to be had, will make three children, not only very happy, but comfortable and able to be about clad so as to make them self-respecting. The fun and joy of playing Santa Claus at Christmas can only be surpassed by playing the same game in summer, quite out of season, and therefore as a greater surprise.

In City Court.

In city court this morning in the action brought by the Albany Household Company against Edward Conlin of this city, a judgment for plaintiff was entered. The action was brought to recover a small amount due for goods sold. Mr. Conlin was in court when the case was called but stated that his wife knew about the merits of the case. As Mr. Conlin did not contest the case, Acting Judge Grogan awarded judgment to plaintiff. The sum sued for, it is said, did not amount to $3.

Raymond Gaudeskie of 179 Murray street was taken to the Kingston City Hospital in the ambulance on Thursday afternoon for treatment for rheumatism.

NATION MOURNS MRS. WILSON'S DEATH

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Aug. 7.—A pall of sadness hangs over the White House and over all of Washington today because of the death of the First Lady of the Land. At the main entrance of the executive mansion, black crepe told of the sorrow within and the gates of the White House grounds were closed. All the flags of the city were at half staff, and only a few clerks, those absolutely necessary for business, were at work in the executive offices.

Washington has not yet recovered from the shock of Mrs. Wilson's death. President Wilson and his daughters remained in grief stricken seclusion in the White House, the former denying himself to all except his family and his secretary. The funeral plans have not yet been arranged, but it is expected that Mrs. Wilson will be buried either at her girlhood home in Rome, Ga., or in Princeton, where she spent so many years while her distinguished husband was president of the university.

Mrs. Wilson was the third wife of a president to die in the White House. Mrs. Benjamin Harrison died on October 25, 1892. Mrs. John Tyler also died there. The death of Mrs. Wilson came after an interim of 22 years without a death in the immediate family of the executive in the mansion. The last death of a member of a presidential family in the White House was that of the Rev. John Witherspoon Scott, the venerable father-in-law of Benjamin Harrison. It was but five weeks before that the wife of President Harrison, Caroline Scott Harrison, passed away after a long illness.

Although Mrs. Woodrow Wilson had spent only a few months of active social life in the White House, she had endeared herself to scores of Washingtonians with whom she became intimately acquainted. She was the first wife of a president to visit the sums of Washington and to take steps to bring about an amelioration of conditions. Only yesterday the Alley bill which she so vigorously advocated, was passed by the senate; it was her dying wish and it will be passed by the House in the near future.

When Mrs. Wilson came to Washington she was a strong, vigorous woman, and despite the exacting social duties she assumed it was not until she had a severe fall in the lobby of the White House that her health began to fail. She slowly grew weaker and when she died she was thin and worn and nothing like the bright, strong, and charming woman who became the First Lady of the Land scarcely sixteen months ago.

Although plans for the funeral have not been announced, it probably will be held Monday. Word came to the White House today that Mrs. Wilson's only sister, Mrs. Edward Elliott is ill in California and will be unable to come to Washington for the services. Her brother, Professor Stockton Axson, is on his way to Washington and expected tomorrow.

S. Z. T. Bown of Atlanta, a cousin of Mrs. Wilson, and George Howe of North Carolina, a nephew, arrived at the White House today. The president is more deeply affected today by the death of his wife than he was yesterday. He is bracing himself, however, to take up the duties of his office again at the earliest possible moment. Hundreds of telegrams and letters of sympathy are arriving at the White House hourly.

It is the president's desire that business in the senate and house of representatives should not be interrupted by reason of Mrs. Wilson's death and inquiries at the White House regarding possible adjournment brought forth a negative reply.

Off for State Camp.

This noon Quartermaster Sergeant Fitzgerald, Sergeant Dittus and Corporal O'Toole, forming the detail from Company M, left for the state camp at Peekskill, where they will attend the school of instruction to be held for three weeks. Each company in the third and fourth brigade sends a detail to the camp to form a provisional company, which will be recruited to full war strength of 150 members. While in camp the company will be drilled under war conditions and will use ball ammunition, firing at movable targets of men afoot and on horseback.

An Easy Mark.

Policeman Fout while on duty at the West Shore station this morning saw a stranger asleep under a telegraph pole clasping several dollar bills in his hand. He awoke him and found that he was too drunk to even give his name and took him to the city hall lockup to sober up. The stranger had $23.89 in his pocket which the police are holding for him. It was lucky for the stranger that he was seen in time by Policeman Fout or when he woke up he would have found his roll among the missing.

Flags at Half Mast.

The flags on the public buildings throughout the city were at half mast today on account of the death of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, wife of the president.

LOCAL ANAESTHETICS

No one discovery has done as much to make dentistry painless as local anaesthetic. Now it is used in 24 cases out of 25 where painlessness is desired.

Local anaesthetic, when applied to the gums, makes the nerve which leads to a tooth insensible to pain for about two minutes. This is long enough for a skillful operator to pull or treat a tooth.

There is only one precaution, the local anaesthetic must be fresh. It disintegrates in about two weeks. We make ours fresh every three days and have never yet had it produce sore gums.

We extract teeth painlessly with this harmless local anaesthetic for 50c each. Open Evenings till 9, Sundays 9 to 11

Are You Eating Squabs Regularly?

You ought to. They are delicious. Squabs are young pigeons only four weeks old. Perhaps you have bought in the markets old pigeons, often offered as squabs. They are comparatively tough and stringy. The genuine squabs, such as we sell, are right out of the nest, fat, plump, juicy, weighing from fourteen ounces to a pound apiece. They are fully feathered. Same as old birds. Squabs are highly esteemed as an article of food because the juice of the squab (which is pure liquid protoplasm) is the most nourishing and vitalizing fluid known. In fact there is no bird or flesh food that can equal the squab for condensed nourishment. We can supply squabs at any time on receipt of your order. Prices 75 cents per pair, by parcel post 15 cents extra.

RIVAL BUTCHERS COLLIDE.

Siller and Farber Lectured and Warned by the Recorder.

Jacob Siller and M. Farber, rival butchers in the lower section of the city, appeared before the recorder this morning as the result of a complaint that Mr. Farber had made in regard to his rival. According to Mr. Farber's story a few days ago he was standing on the corner of Chambers and Murray streets when Siller came up and punched him in the face, cutting it quite badly. The cuts, it was said, were caused by the sharp points of the rings worn by Siller on his fingers. After the alleged assault Mr. Farber took the matter up with his attorney, Henry Klein, and as a result Siller was ordered to appear before the bar of justice. After hearing the story the recorder told them they must leave each other alone and live in peace and if either disturbed the other they would be arrested and if found guilty sent to jail. Farber runs a butcher shop on East Union street and Siller a shop on Chambers street.

Successful Fair at Hurley.

Hurley, Aug. 7.—The long planned fair for festivity which came off on August 4, was a most successful one to the very last degree. Every detail had been carefully thought out and everything connected with the event went off smoothly and pleasantly. The Sunday school room had been very prettily decorated; from the center of the ceiling, long streamers of red and yellow extended to the four posts about the room. The fancy table was becomingly decorated in the national colors and designs, while the candy table was a daintily arranged affair with streamers of blue dotted with pink roses; the apron table was also very neatly decorated in colored ribbons. On each of these tables was an array of appropriate articles, neatly and enticingly arranged for the delectation of the visitors, designed especially for their purses, which came well filled, as was demonstrated by the very handsome sum of money that was netted for the uses of the church. Miss Harbrouck and Mrs. Charles Vredenberg had charge of the fancy table; Miss Sadie Elmendorf and Mrs. Abram Elmendorf looked after the interests of the apron table, while the "Willing Workers" took care that the candy table was well patronized. Of course there was a well of lemonade, deliciously cold and properly sweetened, served out most charmingly by Miss Marie Newkirk and Miss Nita Von Schleider. In one section of the room a screen shut off the "goose" which, in modest alluring advantages of its offerings, the antics of the geese's head and neck, swallowing the pellets offered with the subsequent delivery of an appropriate gift, were very amusing. Miss Lucy Merritt had charge of this department. The supper tables were under the charge of the Ladies' Aid Society, whose constant and assiduous work proved an essential feature of the evening. The young ladies of the "Willing Workers" waited on the guests in a most pleasing manner, adding zest to the comfort of the guests as they partook of the delicious supper offered them. The menu was the very best that Hurley cooking can furnish and that is recommendation enough. When it is taken into consideration the disadvantages under which the ladies work in the narrow limits of the kitchen assigned to them, their work is all the more highly appreciated. No small share in the success of the evening must be attributed to the pastor's wife, who had general supervision of all the arrangements of the evening. There was plenty of room for social gatherings and as friends and groups met about the room, the enjoyment of the evening was easily noticeable.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, August 7.—As a baseball manager, Frank Chance, of the Yankees, and one time of the Cubs, has been greatly overrated, in the opinion of the fans who have scrutinized his record since he took hold of the Yankees in the winter of 1913.

The Yanks finished seventh last year, only 14 points ahead of the cellar champions. They have made a showing this year that is only a trifle better than in 1913 and the chances are 5 to 1 that they won't finish better than seventh.

This situation has caused many of the fans to look back over Chance's career as manager of the Cubs, and the longer they look the dimmer grows the halo that was placed around Chance's head because the Cubs won four pennants and two world's championships while he was at the helm.

In losing bouquets at Chance, as a manager, many of the fans overlooked the fact that Chance inherited a real ball club when he took over the Cub reins. For several years before Chance came, Frank Seely was the Cub manager. For three years Seely hustled around getting new material and rebuilding the old Cub machine. Just when he had perfected it he was deposed and Chance stepped in.

Chance, while manager of the Cubs, had under him such men as Steinbock, Miner Brown, Ruchback, Tinker, Overall, Slagle, Pfister, Lundgren, Kling, Hofman, Sheppard, Moran, Taylor, and a dozen other wonderful players, both as to mechanical ability and brains. What manager couldn't lead such a team to the highest honors in baseball? The old Cub crowd, with a deaf, dumb and blind manager could have gone out and copped the laurels back in 1906, 1907 and 1908.

They didn't need managing. They managed themselves. They won, not through any strategic generalship on the part of Chance, but through sheer ability.

Chance's real test as a manager came when he took charge of the Yankees. And, from all that has come to pass since then, instead of bettering Yankee conditions he has messed them up in a horrible fashion. He has hired and fired with amazing rapidity, and he has made some glaring blunders in judgment.

Chance, as manager of the Yankees, placed the "ball in" stamp on outfielder "Birdie" Cree. He sold him to Baltimore last spring for $2,500. He saw the error of his ways before the season was half over and bought him back at just double the price he got for him.

Klepper, a promising looking pitcher, was on the Yankee roster last year. Chance looked him over and pronounced him unfit. He was sent to the Pacific Coast League. Klepper's owner there has just refused a $16,000 offer for him for an American League club. He wants more—and he'll get it. A half dozen clubs are said to be bidding for the youth.

Chance canned Harry Walter, an outfielder. He declared that Walter's legs had gone back on him, that he had slowed down. Walter is near the top in the base running and run getting in the Pacific Coast League, is batting like a streak and fielding in sensational style. He runs like a deer. He probably will get back into the big leagues next year.

Derrick, a shortstop, was pronounced a flivver by Chance and shipped off to the minors. Derrick, a short time ago, was sold to the Cincinnati Reds for $10,000 and is called one of the best shortstops in the league.

A half dozen pitchers that Chance cannot have been doing wonderful work in the Class A minors and it seems sure that some of them will be back in the majors next season. Daniels, Wakeman, Gilhooly, Chanell, Midkiff and a few more that Chance let go have been hitting over .300 in the minors and fielding in sensational style.

Hal Chase, in 1913, was regarded as one of the greatest first basemen the game ever has known. A half dozen of the big league clubs were after him when Chance decided to sell or trade him. Chase was regarded as worth at least $25,000 in the open market. Chance let Chase go to the White Sox for Borton, a never-user, who long since has gone back to the minors, and Zeider, only an ordinary second sacker, who since has jumped to the Reds. Par value of both was only a little more than the waiver price.

Chance, in his two seasons as manager of the Yankees, has had about 100 men under him. Owner Farrell has been ever ready with the dough bag when Chance wanted a player. Chance had full charge of the running of the team. The selections of the regulars has been entirely up to him. What has he done? Kept a bunch of men that are good only for seventh place at best, and let at least a dozen stars slip through his hands.

If a team were recruited from the best men that Chance has placed the "N. G." stamp upon that team probably could give the Athletics a fight all this year. At any rate, such a team certainly would land in the first division, and be perfectly able.

If at all Particular Drink

at all times, to wallop Chance's regular team at least seven times in every ten attempts.

Who'll Help Three Little Girls?

Mrs. McMillan, social worker for the Federation of Women's Clubs, has asked The Freeman to make known to its readers the need which she has for clothing for three little girls, aged respectively 8, 10 and 12 and all small for their age. These children are in immediate and very real need of clothing and any aid that can be given will be most heartily appreciated. Any persons having clothing which they can spare and which is suitable for the little girls, by sending the same to Mrs. McMillan at the Federation House, or notifying her that the clothing is to be had, will make three children, not only very happy, but comfortable and able to be about clad as to make them self-respecting. The fun and joy of playing Santa Claus at Christmas can only be surpassed by playing the same game in summer, quite out of season, and therefore as a greater surprise.

In City Court.

In city court this morning in the action brought by the Albany Household Company against Edward Conlin of this city, a judgment for plaintiff was entered. The action was brought to recover a small amount due for goods sold. Mr. Conlin was in court when the case was called but stated that his wife knew about the merits of the case. As Mr. Conlin did not contest the case, Acting Judge Grogan awarded judgment to plaintiff. The sum sued for, it is said, did not amount to $3.

At the Hospital.

Raymond Gaudeskie of 179 Murray street was taken to the Kingston City Hospital in the ambulance on Thursday afternoon for treatment for rheumatism.

Quartermaster Sergeant Daniels of Company E, of Catskill, is stopping in town until the recovery of his wife, who recently underwent an operation at the Kingston City Hospital.

Chance to Sober.

Fred Heck was arrested this morning by Policeman Connelly for public intoxication and was given ten days in the county hotel by Recorder Grogan to have a chance to sober up.

NATION MOURNS MRS. WILSON'S DEATH

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Aug. 7.—A pall of sadness hangs over the White House and over all of Washington today because of the death of the First Lady of the Land. At the main entrance of the executive mansion, black crepe told of the sorrow within and the gates of the White House grounds were closed. All the flags of the city were at half staff, and only a few clerks, those absolutely necessary for business, were at work in the executive offices.

Washington has not yet recovered from the shock of Mrs. Wilson's death. President Wilson and his daughters remained in grief stricken seclusion in the White House, the former denying himself to all except his family and his secretary. The funeral plans have not yet been arranged, but it is expected that Mrs. Wilson will be buried either at her childhood home in Rome, Ga., or in Princeton, where she spent so many years while her distinguished husband was president of the university.

Mrs. Wilson was the third wife of a president to die in the White House. Mrs. Benjamin Harrison died on October 25, 1892. Mrs. John Tyler also died there. The death of Mrs. Wilson came after an interim of 22 years without a death in the immediate family of the executive in the mansion. The last death of a member of a presidential family in the White House was that of the Rev. John Witherspoon Scott, the venerable father-in-law of Benjamin Harrison. It was but five weeks before that the wife of President Harrison, Caroline Scott Harrison, passed away after a long illness.

Although Mrs. Woodrow Wilson had spent only a few months of active social life in the White House, she had endeared herself to scores of Washingtonians with whom she became intimately acquainted. She was the first wife of a president to visit the ruins of Washington and to take steps to bring about an amelioration of conditions. Only yesterday the Alley bill which she so vigorously advocated, was passed by the senate; it was her dying wish and it will be passed by the House in the near future.

When Mrs. Wilson came to Washington she was a strong, vigorous woman, and despite the exacting social duties she assumed it was not until she had a severe fall in the lobby of the White House that her health began to fail. She slowly grew weaker and when she died she was thin and worn and nothing like the bright, strong, and charming woman who became the First Lady of the Land scarcely sixteen months ago.

Although plans for the funeral have not been announced, it probably will be held Monday.

Word came to the White House today that Mrs. Wilson's only sister, Mrs. Edward Elliott is ill in California and will be unable to come to Washington for the services. Her brother, Professor Stockton Axson, is on his way to Washington and expected tomorrow.

S. Z. T. Bown of Atlanta, a cousin of Mrs. Wilson, and George Howe of North Carolina, a nephew, arrived at the White House today.

The president is more deeply affected today by the death of his wife than he was yesterday. He is bracing himself, however, to take up the duties of his office again at the earliest possible moment. Hundreds of telegrams and letters of sympathy are arriving at the White House hourly.

It is the president's desire that business in the senate and house of representatives should not be interrupted by reason of Mrs. Wilson's death. He desires that the White House regarding possible adjournment brought forth a negative reply.

Off for State Camp.

This noon Quartermaster Sergeant Fitzgerald, Sergeant Dittus and Corporal O'Toole, forming the detail from Company M, left for the state camp at Peekskill, where they will attend the school of instruction to be held for three weeks. Each company in the third and fourth brigade sends a detail to the camp to form a provisional company, which will be recruited to full war strength of 150 members. While in camp the company will be drilled under war conditions and will use ball ammunition, firing at movable targets of men afoot and on horseback.

An Easy Mark.

Policeman Fout while on duty at the West Shore station this morning saw a stranger asleep under a telegraph pole clasping several dollar bills in his hand. He awoke him and found that he was too drunk to even give his name and took him to the city hall lockup to sober up. The stranger had $23.89 in his pocket which the police are holding for him. It was lucky for the stranger that he was seen in time by Policeman Fout or when he woke up he would have found his roll among the missing.

Flags at Half Mast.

The flags on the public buildings throughout the city were at half mast today on account of the death of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, wife of the president.

LOCAL ANAESTHETICS

No one discovery has done as much to make dentistry painless as local anaesthetic. Now it is used in 24 cases out of 25 where painlessness is desired.

Local anaesthetic, when applied to the gums, makes the nerve which leads to a tooth insensible to pain for about two minutes. This is long enough for a skillful operator to pull or treat a tooth.

There is only one precaution, the local anaesthetic must be fresh. It disintegrates in about two weeks. We make ours fresh every three days and have never yet had it produce sore gums.

We extract teeth painlessly with this harmless local anaesthetic for 50c each.

Are You Eating Squabs Regularly?

You ought to. They are delicious. Squabs are young pigeons only four weeks old. Perhaps you have bought in the markets old pigeons, often offered as squabs. They are comparatively tough and stringy. The genuine squabs, such as we sell, are right out of the nest, fat, plump, juicy, weighing from fourteen ounces to a pound apiece. They are fully feathered. Same as old birds. Squabs are highly esteemed as an article of food because the juice of the squab (which is pure liquid protoplasm) is the most nourishing and vitalizing fluid known. In fact there is no bird or flesh food that can equal the squab for condensed nourishment. We can supply squabs at any time on receipt of your order. Prices 75 cents per pair, by parcel post 15 cents extra.

PORT EWEN.

Port Ewen, Aug. 7.—Miss Agnes Barron, who has spent five months in New York city, has returned to her home on Green street.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Van Aken, who have spent a week at Asbury Park, Ocean Grove and Sea Girt, have returned to their home, corner Broadway and Stout avenue.

Reginald Potter, who has been in business in Walden, has returned to his home, corner of Broadway and Main street.

The following party from this village attended the Reformed Church picnic held in A. J. Rodman's Grove Thursday: Mrs. Ed. Mushit and family, Mrs. Arnold, Mrs. Reginald Van Leuven, Mrs. James R. Rodman and son, Andrew J., and daughter, Jennie E., Miss Mildred Short and Mrs. Ernest Hutchings. Mr. Rodman's Grove an ideal location for a picnic. There was a large crowd present. All had a most delightful time. The refreshments were all sold.

Mr. and Mrs. J. U. Gillette and son, Travis, and daughter, Miriam, of Broadway street Monday with their son, DuBois Gillette, at Lake Minnewaska.

Cornelius Elsworth of St. Remy was the guest of his sister, Miss Mary C. Elsworth, on Salem street, Thursday.

Mrs. Martin Schleele of Riverside avenue spent Wednesday in Poughkeepsie.

Clarence Proper of Salem street is visiting his grandmother, Mrs. Harvey Schoonmaker, of Tillsen.

The Gypsy Carnival held in Vanderveer's Grove Wednesday was a grand success. The young ladies and maidens presented a fine appearance in the Gypsy costumes. The fortune telling by the "Zara Sisters" was the hit of the day. Past, present and future was told in true Gypsy style and many that went through that ordeal were made "happy". The "Animal Zoo" was another attractive feature. The explanation by one of the Gypsy maidens was well worth the price of admission alone. The dance participated in by the younger Gypsies was exceptionally good. The whole affair was fine and worthy of a great deal of praise, and the members of the Dorcas Society should be congratulated for presenting to the people of our village such a rare treat.

James Hahn of Poughkeepsie is visiting his sister, Mrs. Martin Schleele, on Riverside avenue.

Mrs. John U. Gillette of Broadway substituted at the pipe organ in the Reformed Church at New Paltz last Sunday in the absence of the regular organist, Mrs. Baker.

Miss Ethel Elmdorf of South Orange, N. J., spent Thursday with her cousin, Mrs. William Dibble, on Broadway.

A regular meeting of Hope Lodge, No. 65, Knights of Pythias, will be held this evening at 8 o'clock in their Castle Hall on Broadway. The representative of the recent session of the Grand Lodge held at Oswego will be present and make his report and he says he has some interesting things to tell them in regard to new legislation. A large attendance is expected.

Mrs. Alice Van Wagenen, who has spent two weeks with her sister, Mrs. Anna Eltinge, on Broadway, returned Friday.

Mrs. Anna Eltinge of Broadway went Friday to spend two weeks with her sister, Mrs. R. E. Freure, at Mt. Tabor, N. J. Mrs. Eltinge was accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Van Wagenen.

Miss Angie Hutchings of New York city came today to spend a week with relatives here.

The Gleaners held their regular monthly meeting on Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. Charles Neice. After the reading of minutes and roll call the lessons for the month of July were very ably expounded by different members of the class. Mrs. Andrew Taylor and Mrs. John Monroe also gave a reading. The rest of the evening was then given up to sociability. During the evening dainty refreshments were served by the hostess. The next meeting in September will be held at the home of Mrs. Beckwith.

Mrs. George T. Van Aken of Broadway went Thursday to Bloomington, N. J., to visit her parents.

Norman Ayers of Castleton is the guest of his daughter, Mrs. James R. Rodman, on Hasbrouck street.

TRAIN FOR VACATION.

Writer Advises Preparation For "Rest" by Course of Exercises.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Albany, Aug. 7.—The standard summer joke of the comic supplement and the humorous weekly is the rest that the vacationer must take to fit himself for business after his return from his summer "rest." Dr. W. P. Northrup, professor of the diseases of children, University and Bellevue Hospital Medical College, New York city, in an article in the "Hot Weather Hygiene Number" of health news, the official publication of the state department of health, advises a course of training for the city dweller to fit himself for his vacation.

"Do not wait until vacation time to get in training for the exercise you will want to take in those two weeks," says Professor Northrup. "Get in training for the enjoyment of vacation and keep in trim for the hot weather between, by walking part of the way to your office and by taking a little brisk exercise in your bedroom; do not over-exercise or exercise much in the hot sun unless you are accustomed to it."

Some of Professor Northrup's advice for the hot weather is as follows: "Get the body healthy, before the heated term arrives." "Get plenty of sleep; there is a tendency to sit up too late on warm evenings."

"Take cold baths frequently." "Use thin, clean undergarments." "Laborers use a single shirt made of cotton and wool, to protect against the chilling effect of sudden changes."

"Keep the digestion in the best possible condition." "Eat once a day for out-door laborers. Fish once a day for those less strenuously employed, plenty of fruit and vegetables."

"Light frequent meals with plenty of water between, are right for hot weather."

"Cold beer and ice water are about the poorest drinks for hot weather."

"Oatmeal water is good." "Avoid constipation."

For the babies, Professor Northrup's advice may be summed up as follows:

"Nurse your babies and do not wean them during hot weather; consult a physician before giving them the bottle; diminish the amount of clothing by half; let the baby lie on a firm surface, not on a pillow; cover it only with a little cotton undershirt; arms and legs free and uncovered; bathe the baby every day."

The Air Fleets.

The great conflict now raging among the powers of Europe promises not only to be a struggle for supremacy on land and sea but for supremacy in the air as well.

France, Russia and England will send their vast air fleets against the giant Zeppelins of the Germans.

In a measure the present European war will settle for all time the relative merits of the aeroplane and the dirigible balloon as engines of destruction. In the development of the latter type of aircraft Germany stands supreme. She has nine of the giant Zeppelins, fully equipped and five more nearing completion. Work on these is being rushed with all possible speed. They range from 450 to 525 feet in length, are equipped with motors giving from 350 to 420 horse power, and carry light three inch guns which have been successfully fired in maneuvers. They speed through the air at the rate of forty or fifty miles an hour.

All the Zeppelins are of the rigid type, the outer shell and framework being of aluminum construction. Inside the framework are the silk bags, as many as seventeen in some of the largest types, filled with hydrogen gas. The advantage of a number of small bags lies in the ability of the airship to keep aloft even with one or more of the bags punctured or otherwise out of commission.

Austria also has several rigid dirigibles and Italy has three or four. If Italy joins in with Germany and Austria, the Triple Alliance will have at its disposal 31 of this type of aircraft.

On the other hand England, France and Russia can muster 34 gas bag airships, but they are all much smaller than the Zeppelins and are of the non-rigid and semi-rigid type.

The Triple Entente, formed by these three countries, will win their faith to their aeroplanes rather than to their balloons. It is estimated that the Entente has 1,850 aeroplanes against the 700 of the Allies. France, especially, has developed the army aeroplane to a high state of efficiency and uses both the monoplane and the biplane, although the former predominates. For scouting work the monoplane has proved to be more successful because of the greater speed it can attain and the fewer chances of discovery by the enemy.

The Italian aviators are the only airmen who have received actual training in aerial warfare. The Italians successfully used aeroplanes in their campaign in Tripoli and also attained a certain measure of success with semi-rigid dirigibles.

England has one fast, though small dirigible attached to her navy. This is the Astra Torres IV, which recently made fifty-one miles an hour against a twelve mile wind. It is of the non-rigid type and can be deflated and packed aboard a warship.

The Vickers and Armstrong firms are now constructing two rigid airships for the British admiralty. These, when completed, will resemble the Zeppelins. England also has one naval parseval, 270 feet long. The Astra Torres is slightly smaller. There are also four other airships, from 100 to 150 feet in length. France has 15 dirigibles attached to her army. These range from 275 to 325 feet in length. The Spies, the largest of the French fleet, is rigid. There is also under construction another Spies which will be 450 feet long.

Austria has but three airships in condition for use, a collision about a month ago having destroyed one of the Austrian army balloons.

Little is known of the Russian dirigibles. She has thirteen small, low speed craft. Like England and France she has concentrated on the aeroplane.

Judge Tompkins's Horse Won.

Justice Tompkins's Wood Olcott defeated Judge Seeger's Amasis in two heats at Walden outing on Thursday. The best time was 2:20 1/4. Amasis took the first two heats but the Nyack horse was faster in the next two. The prize was a yearling Alderney calf. A third race is being arranged between the two jurists at Goshen track in the near future. The five mile motorcycle race held in connection with the outing was won by James Pallazzo of Newburgh in 6:26.

Arrested in Cornwall.

Patrick Egan of this city was arrested in Cornwall early Thursday morning. Chief Tombs, who was in disguise, made the arrest. The officer has been alarmed by reason of recent burglaries and found Egan loitering in Mathieson Park. Egan was held for further examination.

Don't Know Eastman.

PORT EWEN.

Port Ewen, Aug. 7.—Miss Agnes Barron, who has spent five months in New York city, has returned to her home on Green street.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Van Aken, who have spent a week at Asbury Park, Ocean Grove and Sea Girt, have returned to their home, corner Broadway and Stout avenue.

Reginald Potter, who has been in business in Walden, has returned to his home, corner of Broadway and Main street.

The following party from this village attended the Reformed Church picnic held in A. J. Rodman's Grove Thursday: Mrs. Ed. Mughit and family, Mrs. Arnold, Mrs. Reginald Van Leuven, Mrs. James R. Rodman and son, Andrew J., and daughter, Jennie E. Miss Mildred Short and Mrs. Ernest Hutchings. Mr. Rodman's Grove an ideal location for a picnic. There was a large crowd present. All had a most delightful time. The refreshments were all sold.

Mr. and Mrs. J. U. Gillette and son, Travis, and daughter, Miriam, of Broadway spent Monday with their son, DuBois Gillette, at Lake Minnewaska.

Cornelius Elsworth of St. Remy was the guest of his sister, Miss Mary C. Elsworth, on Salem street, Thursday.

Mrs. Martin Schiede of Riverside avenue spent Wednesday in Poughkeepsie.

Clarence Proper of Salem street is visiting his grandmother, Mrs. Harvey Schoonmaker, of Tillson.

The Gypsy Carnival held in Vanderveer's Grove Wednesday was a grand success. The young ladies and maidens presented a fine appearance in the Gypsy costumes. The fortune telling by the "Zara Sisters" was the hit of the day. Past, present and future was told in true Gypsy style and many that went through that ordeal were made "happy". The "Animal Zoo" was another attractive feature. The explanation by one of the Gypsy maidens was well worth the price of admission alone. The dance participated in by the younger Gypsies was exceptionally good. The whole affair was fine and worthy of a great deal of praise, and the members of the Dorcas Society should be congratulated for presenting to the people of our village such a rare treat.

James Hahn of Poughkeepsie is visiting his sister, Mrs. Martin Schiede, on Riverside avenue.

Mrs. John U. Gillette of Broadway substituted at the pipe organ in the Reformed Church at New Paltz last Sunday in the absence of the regular organist, Mrs. Baker.

Miss Ethel Elmendorf of South Orange, N. J., spent Thursday with her cousin, Mrs. William Dibble, on Broadway.

A regular meeting of Hope Lodge, No. 65, Knights of Pythias, will be held this evening at 8 o'clock in their Castle Hall on Broadway. The representative of the recent session of the Grand Lodge held at Oswego will be present and make his report and he says he has some interesting things to tell them in regard to new legislation. A large attendance is requested.

Mrs. Alice Van Wagenen, who has spent two weeks with her sister, Mrs. Anna Eltinge, on Broadway, returned Friday.

Mrs. Anna Eltinge of Broadway went Friday to spend two weeks with her sister, Mrs. R. E. Freure, at Mt. Tabor, N. J. Mrs. Eltinge was accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Van Wagenen.

Miss Angie Hutchings of New York city came today to spend a week with relatives here. The Gleasons held their regular monthly meeting on Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. Charles Neice. After the reading of minutes and roll call the lessons for the month of July was very ably expounded by different members of the class. Mrs. Andrew Taylor and Mrs. John Monroe also gave a reading. The rest of the evening was then given up to sociability. During the evening dainty refreshments were served by the hostess. The next meeting in September will be held at the home of Mrs. Beckwith.

Mrs. George T. Van Aken of Broadway went Thursday to Bloomington, N. Y., to visit her parents. Norman Ayers of Castleton is the guest of his daughter, Mrs. James R. Rodman, on Hasbrouck street.

TRAIN FOR VACATION.

Writer Advises Preparation For "Rest" by Course of Exercises.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
 Albany, Aug. 7.—The standard summer joke of the comic supplement and the humorous weekly is the rest that the vacationer must take to fit himself for business after his return from his summer "rest." Dr. W. P. Northrup, professor of the diseases of children, University and Bellevue Hospital Medical College, New York city, in an article in the "Hot Weather Hygiene Number" of health news, the official publication of the state department of health, advises a course of training for the city dweller to fit himself for his vacation.

"Do not wait until vacation time to get in training for the exercise you will want to take in those two weeks," says Professor Northrup. "Get in training for the enjoyment of vacation and keep in trim for the hot weather between, by walking part of the way to your office and by taking a little brisk exercise in your bedroom; do not over-exercise or exercise much in the hot sun unless you are accustomed to it."

Some of Professor Northrup's advice for the hot weather is as follows: "Get the body healthy before the heated term arrives." "Get plenty of sleep; there is a tendency to sit up too late on warm evenings."

"Take cold baths frequently." "Use thin, clean undergarments." "Laborers use a single shirt made of cotton and wool, to protect against the chilling effect of sudden changes."

"Keep the digestion in the best possible condition." "Meat once a day for out-door laborers. Fish once a day for those less strenuously employed, plenty of fruit and vegetables."

"Light frequent meals with plenty of water between, are right for hot weather." "Cold beer and ice water are about the poorest drinks for hot weather."

"Oatmeal water is good." "Avoid constipation."

For the babies, Professor Northrup's advice may be summed up as follows:

"Nurse your babies and do not wean them during hot weather; consult a physician before giving it the bottle; diminish the amount of clothing by half; let the baby lie on a firm surface, not on a pillow; cover it only with a little cotton under-shirt; arms and legs free and uncovered; bathe the baby every day."

The Air Fleets.

The great conflict now raging among the powers of Europe promises not only to be a struggle for supremacy on land and sea but for supremacy in the air as well.

France, Russia and England will send their vast air fleets against the giant Zeppelins of the Germans.

In a measure the present European war will settle for all time the relative merits of the aeroplane and the dirigible balloon as engines of destruction. In the development of the latter type of aircraft Germany stands supreme. She has nine of the giant Zeppelins, fully equipped and five more nearing completion. Work on these is being rushed with all possible speed. They range from 450 to 525 feet in length, are equipped with motors giving from 350 to 420 horse power, and carry light three inch guns which have been successfully fired in manoeuvres. They speeded through the air at the rate of forty or fifty miles an hour.

All the Zeppelins are of the rigid type, the outer shell and framework being of aluminum construction. Inside the framework are the silk bags, as many as seventeen in some of the largest types, filled with hydrogen gas. The advantage of a number of small bags lies in the ability of the airship to keep aloft even with one or more of the bags punctured or otherwise out of commission.

Austria also has several rigid dirigibles and Italy has three or four. If Italy joins in with Germany and Austria, the Triple Alliance will have at its disposal 31 of this type of aircraft.

On the other hand England, France and Russia can muster 34 gas bag airships, but they are all much smaller than the Zeppelins and are of the non-rigid and semi-rigid type.

The Triple Entente, formed by these three countries, will pin their faith to their aeroplanes rather than to their balloons. It is estimated that the Entente has 1,860 aeroplanes against the 700 of the Alliance. France, especially, has developed the army aeroplane to a high state of efficiency and uses both the monoplane and the biplane, although the former predominates. For scouting work the monoplane has proved to be more successful because of the greater speed it can attain and the fewer chances of discovery by the enemy.

The Italian aviators are the only airmen who have received actual training in aerial warfare. The Italians successfully used aeroplanes in their campaign in Tripoli and also attained a certain measure of success with semi-rigid dirigibles.

England has one fast, though small dirigible attached to her navy. This is the Astra Torres IV, which recently made fifty-one miles an hour against a twelve mile wind. It is of the non-rigid type and can be deflated and packed aboard a warship. The Vickers and Armstrong firms are now constructing two rigid airships for the British admiralty. These, when completed, will resemble the Zeppelins. England also has one naval parseval, 270 feet long. The Astra Torres is slightly smaller. There are also four other airships, from 100 to 150 feet in length. France has 15 dirigibles attached to her army. These range from 275 to 325 feet in length. The Spies, the largest of the French fleet, is rigid. There is also under construction another Spies which will be 450 feet long.

Austria has but three airships in condition for use, a collision about a month ago having destroyed one of the Austrian army balloons.

Little is known of the Russian dirigibles. She has thirteen small, low speed craft. Like England and France she has concentrated on the aeroplane.

Judge Tompkins's Horse Won.

Justice Tompkins's Wood Olcott defeated Judge Seeger's Amasis in two heats at Walden outing on Thursday. The best time was 2:20 1/4. Amasis took the first two heats but the Nyack horse was faster in the next two. The prize was a yearling Alderney calf. A third race is being arranged between the two jurists at Goshen track in the near future. The five mile motorcycle race held in connection with the outing was won by James Pallazzo of Newburgh in 6:26.

"SERIOUS ERROR" SAYS MR. VOORHEES

Some time ago a resolution was offered in the common council by Alderman Martin, dividing the Twelfth ward in two districts, so that Section 296 of Chapter 244 of the election law would be carried out.

This resolution was passed by the common council but was vetoed by the mayor. The election law requires that this division be made before the first of July, and that not over four hundred registered voters shall be enrolled in each election district. Mr. Martin basing his resolution on this law, wrote to the state superintendent of elections and received the following reply:

August 5, 1914

Hon. W. B. Martin,
Alderman, 12 Ward,
Kingston, N. Y.

Dear sir—Your letter dated July 22, post-marked August 4, 11 a. m., was delivered at this office at 6 o'clock last evening.

From your statement of the vote cast in the several wards of Kingston in 1912, it would seem to me that there are several of the wards (assuming as I do that each ward constitutes an election district) that should have been, before July 1, last, divided or changed in their boundaries so that a number of registered voters, as per the records of 1912, would have been in each election district within the limits as prescribed by the election law as amended by Section 296 of Chapter 244 of the laws of 1914.

I consider the election law, as amended, very positive in its requirements that in every ward of a city, except New York and Buffalo, which shall contain more than four hundred voters, the common council of such city shall on or before the first day of July in each year, whenever necessary so to do, divide such town or ward respectively into election districts to take effect on the fifth Wednesday before the general election in each year of which shall contain respectively as near as may be three hundred voters, except that in the year of 1914 where a ward does not contain more than four hundred registered voters, such redistricting shall not be required.

As the method of voting by ballot under the present law requires the marking by the voter on the ballot of his preference for each and every candidate for whom he desires to vote and admits of no voting for all the nominees of a party by making a single cross mark in the party circle, it must be very evident I think that much more time will be required for casting the usual vote of the election district than heretofore, and therefore is considered that the intent of the recent amendment to the law reducing the number of registered voters permissible in an election district was to make more certain that no electors should be disfranchised through the number of voters registered being greater than could reasonably vote within the hours fixed by law for voting. I therefore cannot but think from your statement that a serious error has been or is being committed, and a great responsibility is being assumed by the proper authorities of the city of Kingston in a failure to observe the mandates of the law as amended by redistricting the city so that no election district would contain a greater number of registered voters than is specified therein and above quoted.

Very respectfully,
JOHN R. VOORHEES,
State Superintendent of Election.

ESOPUS TO THE FRONT.

Fifth District Furnished Exciting and Novel Features at Primary.

South Rondout, Aug. 7.—One of the largest caucuses that was ever held in the Fifth district, town of Esopus, was held Thursday evening. There were 66 votes cast. The meeting was called at 7:30 promptly and nominations were called. For chairman, Charles McDonald and Fred Vogt were nominated and a vote was taken. Charles McDonald was elected by a majority of three. The next nomination was for secretary and Arthur V. Gill was nominated and unanimously elected. The next motion was for the nomination for three delegates to the county convention. Charles McDonald, Ralph Freer, Augustus Hotelling, Jerry Avery, Charles Snyder and Henry Stingle were nominated. A vote was taken and after the voting was finished and ballots were counted it was found that there were 67 votes cast and only 66 people that voted. On a motion made that some one toss up a quarter and let one faction take heads and the other tails to see which side should destroy a vote, the chair appointed Henry Stingle to toss the quarter. The quarter came down tails and that gave the McDonald faction a right to destroy one vote. The tellers after counting the ballots gave out the following vote: McDonald, Freer and Hotelling, 42; Avery, Snyder and Stingle 24, giving a majority to the McDonald delegates of 18. A very amusing incident happened while the balloting was going on. Augustus Hotelling, one of the delegates, passed around a box of cigars bearing the brand of "Not Left," and someone said that he didn't think that he (Hotelling) would be left.

The Kind Of Government He Liked

By JOHN G. LARNED

"In any event, the crown prince must not be exposed," said Von Bernstein.

"Which means that I must lose myself to the world."

The reply was made by Count Esterhoff, on whose person had been found a pack of marked cards. A party of young noblemen and the prince had been playing baccarat. His royal highness had lost heavily, and Esterhoff had won. In order to force the latter to return his winnings the prince, who sat near the winner, slipped the marked pack into his pocket and then accused him of having won his money by cheating. To prove his accusation he demanded that Esterhoff be searched, and the cards were found.

No one was deceived, nor was it intended that any one should be deceived. The scheme was to effect the return of the money the prince had lost to Esterhoff without the heir apparent being obliged to demean himself by accepting it as a gift.

"There is a way out of it if you choose to avail yourself of it," said Bernstein.

"What way?"

"Give up what you have won to the prince and the matter will be hushed up."

"That would be to acknowledge myself guilty. I prefer to appear guilty to the world and preserve my own self respect."

"Nonsense, count. It is our duty to preserve the sovereign from reproach. He belongs to the people. Let them lose confidence in him and what follows? Anarchy."

Esterhoff stood firm. He was excluded from the prince's set on the ground that he had used marked cards. He gave his winnings to the poor, which was considered a proof that his conscience had in the end got the better of him. Under the name of Peter Esterhoff he went to America. His family estates had been lost by his father, and it was his ambition to make money and redeem them.

Twenty years rolled by. The crown prince had become king under the title of Oscar VIII. He had remained a gambler and a spendthrift, though the ill success to recoup his losses with Count Esterhoff had kept him from trying such a method again. During the two decades that had since passed he had become personally bankrupt. All that saved him was that the wealthy nobility, fearing that if he collapsed he would carry the government and them down with him, kept him aloof.

A wealthy American came to the capital and took a residence. He was unmarried and lived entirely alone. Nobody knew why he had come, why he remained or what he did with himself. Bankers knew that he had brought with him unlimited credit from America, and it seemed to them that the money he drew was expended for something, though they did not know what.

One day the king received notice from a lawyer that one of his notes which was due must be paid at once. Oscar forwarded the note through his chamberlain to a noble who had been appointed by the other nobles to take care of the king's debts. The amount was paid, but other similar notices came pouring in so fast that it was found impossible to take care of them. His majesty was informed that there was danger of a public scandal. Many of these claims were for money advanced for illegitimate purposes. The king asked who was pressing them, and was told that an American multimillionaire was supposed to be at the bottom of it all.

One morning the American received a "command" to appear at the palace. He replied that he had no wish to visit the king; if the king wished to see him he would find him at home. The next day the royal carriage stopped at the American's house; the king alighted and was received in the drawing room.

"I have called," said Oscar, "to learn the meaning of your having bought up claims against me and pressing them for payment."

"Perhaps your majesty may remember when you were crown prince slipping a pack of marked cards into my pocket."

"Your pocket?"

"I am Count Esterhoff."

The king blanched.

"I have kept those cards," continued Esterhoff, "and would like to sell them to your majesty."

"How much do you ask for them?"

Inquired Oscar after collecting his faculties.

"Two hundred thousand American dollars for each card."

"Great heavens, man! What do you mean?"

"I mean that in my youth I lived under a system wherein the chief men and women found it to their interest to support injustice. If your people still feel the same in this matter let them raise $10,400,000 and buy the cards. I hold your notes to that amount, and the notes will go with the cards."

After a great effort those whose fortunes depended on the stability of the government raised the amount. As fast as the money came in they would redeem one or more cards and corresponding notes till all were taken up. Then Esterhoff instead of redeeming his family domains went back to America. He said he had no use for a government except of the people, by the people and for the people.

KAISER CONFERRING WITH HIS GENERALS AND HIGHLAND REGIMENT ON WAY TO FRONT.

It will be only a matter of hours before the Belgian appeal to Great Britain for troops with which to repel the German invaders is answered and troops are sent rushing across the English channel to Belgium's defense. The army is already mobilized and needs only the command to set it in motion. One of the first regiments to go will be the crack Highland regiment made up of Scotland's best fighting men.

The Cynics.

Corset Ancient Armor. A French historian of women's dress states that the corset was worn by the ancient Egyptians. This assertion is borne out by the figures carved on the tombs of women, who are invariably represented as wearing a garment strongly resembling the modern corset. There does not appear to be any representation extant of Cleopatra VI., the beloved of Antony, but in one of the temples there is a figure of her predecessor, Cleopatra II., in which the sculptor has endowed her with a corset cut on the lines of those worn today. Whalebone was probably unknown to the Egyptians, but a nation capable of constructing pyramids without steam cranes would probably find no difficulty in making stays without busks.—London Standard.

Cynics was the name applied to a school of philosophers founded by Antisthenes, a pupil of Socrates. The main tenet of the extreme cynics was that civilization is a curse, and true happiness can be obtained only by gratifying the most primary physical appetites which man has in common with brutes. The general attitude of the cynics as distinguished from that of the stoics, who regarded everything in the external world with indifference, was one of contempt. They were not an important philosophical school numerically, but attracted attention largely by their eccentricities and insolence. On account of their contempt for refinement their name came subsequently to be applied to any one who takes a mean view of human life.

"SERIOUS ERROR" SAYS MR. VOORHEES

Some time ago a resolution was offered in the common council by Alderman Martin, dividing the Twelfth ward in two districts, so that Section 296 of Chapter 244 of the election law would be carried out.

This resolution was passed by the common council but was vetoed by the mayor. The election law requires that this division be made before the first of July, and that not over four hundred registered voters shall be enrolled in each election district. Mr. Martin basing his resolution on this law, wrote to the state superintendent of elections and received the following reply:

August 5, 1914

Hon. W. B. Martin,
Alderman, 12 Ward,
Kingston, N. Y.

Dear sir—Your letter dated July 22, post-marked August 4, 11 a. m., was delivered at this office at 6 o'clock last evening.

From your statement of the vote cast in the several wards of Kingston in 1912, it would seem to me that there are several of the wards (assuming as I do that each ward constitutes an election district) that should have been, before July 1, last, divided or changed in their boundaries so that a number of registered voters, as per the records of 1912, would have been in each election district within the limits as prescribed by the election law as amended by Section 296 of Chapter 244 of the laws of 1914.

I consider the election law, as amended, very positive in its requirements that in every ward of a city, except New York and Buffalo, which shall contain more than four hundred voters, the common council of such city shall on or before the first day of July in each year, whenever necessary so to do, divide such town or ward respectively into election districts to take effect on the fifth Wednesday before the general election in each year of which shall contain respectively as near as may be three hundred voters, except that in the year of 1914 where a ward does not contain more than four hundred registered voters, such redistricting shall not be required.

As the method of voting by ballot under the present law requires the marking by the voter on the ballot of his preference for each and every candidate for whom he desires to vote and admits of no voting for all nominees of a party by making a single cross mark in the party circle, it must be very evident I think that much more time will be required for casting the usual vote of the election district than heretofore, and therefore is considered that the intent of the recent amendment to the law reducing the number of registered voters permissible in an election district was to make more certain that no electors should be disfranchised through the number of electors registered being greater than could reasonably vote within the hours fixed by law for voting. I therefore cannot but think from your statement that a serious error has been or is being committed, and a great responsibility is being assumed by the proper authorities of the city of Kingston in a failure to observe the mandates of the law as amended by redistricting the city so that no election district would contain a greater number of registered voters than is specified therein and above quoted.

Very respectfully,

JOHN R. VOORHEES,
State Superintendent of Election.

ESOPUS TO THE FRONT.

Fifth District Furnished Exciting and Novel Features at Primary.

South Rondout, Aug. 7.—One of the largest caucuses that was ever held in the Fifth district, town of Esopus, was held Thursday evening. There were 66 votes cast. The meeting was called at 7:30 promptly and nominations were called. For chairman, Charles McDonald and Fred Vogt were nominated and a vote was taken. Charles McDonald was elected by a majority of three. The next nomination was for secretary and Arthur V. Gill was nominated and unanimously elected. The next motion was for the nomination for three delegates to the county convention. Charles McDonald, Ralph Freer, Augustus Hotelling, Jerry Avery, Charles Snyder and Henry Stingle were nominated. A vote was taken and after the voting was finished and ballots were counted it was found that there were 67 votes cast and only 66 people that voted. On a motion made that some one take up a quarter and let one faction take heads and the other tails to see which side should destroy a vote, the chair appointed Henry Stingle to toss the quarter. The quarter came down tails and that gave the McDonald faction a right to destroy one vote. The tellers after counting the ballots gave out the following vote: McDonald, Freer and Hotelling, 42; Avery, Snyder and Stingle 24, giving a majority to the McDonald delegates of 18. A very amusing incident happened while the balloting was going on. Augustus Hotelling, one of the delegates, passed around a box of cigars bearing the brand of "Not Left," and someone said that he didn't think that he (Hotelling) would be left.

The Kind Of Government He Liked

By JOHN G. LARNED

"In any event, the crown prince must not be exposed," said Von Bernstein.

"Which means that I must lose myself to the world."

The reply was made by Count Esterhoff, on whose person had been found a pack of marked cards. A party of young noblemen and the prince had been playing baccarat. His royal highness had lost heavily, and Esterhoff had won. In order to force the latter to return his winnings the prince, who sat near the winner, slipped the marked pack into his pocket and then accused him of having won his money by cheating. WAR MENACES COTTON TRADE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, August 7.—Six hundred million dollars' worth of American cotton may be thrown back on the United States as a result of the European war. The department of agriculture officials are today working on a plan to prevent the closing of European markets from resulting in heavy losses to the cotton producers and dealers. It is the belief of government experts that the war in Europe will make it necessary for American cotton mills to work day and night to meet the foreign demand for clothing and that a large percentage of the cotton usually sent abroad can be disposed of in this fashion at home.

Charles J. Brand, chief of the office of markets, is in charge of the department's efforts to devise the relief plans. He is working toward the organization of American cotton producers for protection against the effects of the European struggle. The department states that if the producers can be induced to erect warehouses and store all unused cotton until the war is over, they will incur little, if any, loss. It is proposed to establish a system whereby farmers can borrow or draw in advance on warehouse receipts for cotton stored at home.

Spiders Are Not Insects.

The spider is not an insect, though probably nine people out of ten would class it under this term. With scorpions and mites, spiders form a class in the animal kingdom known as arachnids. This name is derived from a mythical personage called Arachne, the daughter of a purple dyer of Lydia, who was fabled to have challenged Minerva to a trial of skill in spinning. So indignant was the goddess at this act of boldness that she forthwith transformed the hapless challenger into a spider, presumably in order that she might have the best possible opportunity of practicing the art on which she prided herself so much. Spiders differ from insects in five main particulars. Their eyes are simple instead of compound, they have eight legs in place of six, they do not pass through the metamorphoses which are characteristic of insects, they have no antennae, and their breathing is accomplished by means of organs which combine the functions of lungs and gills instead of by tubes pervading their bodies. These points of distinction are sufficient to determine the fact that it is impossible to class spiders as insects.

Seasickness.

Seasickness comes on oceans, lakes and some rivers. Not every one, however, who travels upon these bodies of water can acquire it, as it appears to come only to those who have a gift for it. It has one great merit not common to all gifts, as it may be acquired without previous practice. Those who are skillful do not have to be taught. Like inspiration and the wonderful one horse shay, it comes to them "all at once and nothing first."

Various cures have been devised for seasickness. One of them is publicity. If you can keep on deck where you will be seen by all men and a few fishes that may be staring at you, it is said to be a great help. The best cure, however, is carefully to remove the water from underneath the particular vessel in which you happen to be passing away. If enough water can be removed the seasickness will be invariably cured.

Seasickness is the only thing you get from the steamship company that you don't pay for.—Life.

ORDERED TO "CAPTURE OR DESTROY THE ENEMY."

Sir John Jellicoe.

London, Aug. 7.—"Great Britain declares war on Germany. Capture or destroy the enemy." This was the brief wireless message in which Sir John Jellicoe, the newly appointed head of the squadron of the high seas, received his orders immediately after the declaration of war.

WAR MENACES COTTON TRADE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, August 7.—Six hundred million dollars' worth of American cotton may be thrown back on the United States as a result of the European war. The department of agriculture officials are today working on a plan to prevent the closing of European markets from resulting in heavy losses to the cotton producers and dealers. It is the belief of government experts that the war in Europe will make it necessary for American cotton mills to work day and night to meet the foreign demand for clothing and that a large percentage of the cotton usually sent abroad can be disposed of in this fashion at home.

Charles J. Brand, chief of the office of markets, is in charge of the department's efforts to devise the relief plans. He is working toward the organization of American cotton producers for protection against the effects of the European struggle. The department states that if the producers can be induced to erect warehouses and store all unused cotton until the war is over, they will incur little, if any, loss. It is proposed to establish a system whereby farmers can borrow or draw in advance on warehouse receipts for cotton stored.

Spiders Are Not Insects.

The spider is not an insect, though probably nine people out of ten would class it under this term. With scorpions and mites, spiders form a class in the animal kingdom known as arachnids. This name is derived from a mythical personage called Arachne, the daughter of a purple dyer of Lydia, who was fabled to have challenged Minerva to a trial of skill in spinning. So indignant was the goddess at this act of boldness that she forthwith transformed the hapless challenger into a spider, presumably in order that she might have the best possible opportunity of practicing the art on which she prided herself so much. Spiders differ from insects in five main particulars. Their eyes are simple instead of compound, they have eight legs in place of six, they do not pass through the metamorphoses which are characteristic of insects, they have no antennae, and their breathing is accomplished by means of organs which combine the functions of lungs and gills instead of by tubes pervading their bodies. These points of distinction are sufficient to determine the fact that it is impossible to class spiders as insects.

Seasickness comes on oceans, lakes and some rivers. Not every one, however, who travels upon these bodies of water can acquire it, as it appears to come only to those who have a gift for it. It has one great merit not common to all gifts, as it may be acquired without previous practice. Those who are skillful do not have to be taught.
